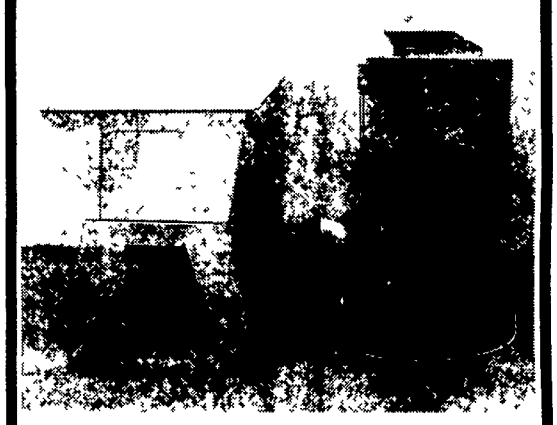
Heat with Corn!


Burn Shelled Corn In This Biomass Furnace
A BETTER ALTERNATIVE
The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed There's no need to load the furnace several times a day The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal UL Approved

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

There were no drastic moves in today's markets, wheat and corn bids remained about steady and soybean continued to hold firm. Traders are anticipating Friday's USDA production and stock reports Wheat steady to 1 cent higher. Corn steady to 1 cent higher. Sorghum steady. Soybeans 1 to 4 cents higher.

Mostly steady wheat bids were due to traders position squaring ahead of the upcoming government reports due out Friday. Some concerns exist for hard red winter wheat crops as warm weather returns to forecasts.

Continued chaos in Argentina and dry weather in South America remain pressure factors in corn and soybean bids. Spillover strength in bean pits over the past couple of days kept bids firm. Export sales are slow again this week.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

ST. HILARY, JAN. 14

DANCING OUT THE TREE

St Knut's Day usually January 13 but celebrated on January 14 this year so as not to fall on a Sunday, is a Swedish festival day and considered the best day to discard the Christmas tree—before every last needle has fallen off and it becomes a fire hazard! It is a formal end to the Yuletide revelry and festivities Small treats and candies are placed on the tree as incentives for the young children as they dismantle the decorations and put things away After their careful work and the "dancing out" of the tree they toss the tree into a snow bank Throughout the festivities, the celebrants sing songs dedicated to the event Swedish children look forward to this time almost as much as they do Christmas

–Lord Byron English poet (1788–1824)

Maybe It Is Time

To the surprise of few, southcentral Pennsylvania is once again experiencing a drought situation. With Pennsylvania recording drought conditions in four of the last six years, maybe it is time to look beyond our typical band-aid approach of emergency water conservation such as reducing water consumption in our homes, and turn to more long-term conservation practices.

We are not suggesting that individual water conservation measures are not important. They are! What we are suggesting is that our past and current conservation actions have not been enough, and maybe it is time to tackle the tough and controversial issues of how we use our land and abuse our water resources.

There are those individuals who would argue that we are going through a natural cycle concerning the frequency of our droughts and that, soon enough, all will be well. This may very well be a natural cycle it may be 10 or 15 years until we have another serious drought. Or, the drought trend could be indicative of a larger problem. However, no matter what the case, a drought is the only time when many people realize the limited aspects of our fresh water and, therefore, it is the best time to decide our actions concerning the future of that water. What we do now will have a serious impact on the severity of any future droughts.

Many people realize the limited aspect of other natural resources such as oil, but fail to acknowledge the same limitation of our clean, usable freshwater. Our water resources are not unlimited! They are affected every day by development, pollution, and population growth. In 1900, each of the six million people living in Pennsylvania used about five gallons of water per day. Since then, our population has doubled to almost 12 million people and our water consumption has increased to an average of 62 gallons per day.

Part of this 900 percent increase in water use is obviously due to the many modern water-using conveniences in our homes, but nevertheless indicates that we could be in serious trouble, soon! Each year we drill 10,000 new wells in Pennsylvania that are, to a great extent, unregulated. Simple math shows that the severity of our current drought will probably be much worse in 10 to 15 years when we could have as many as 100,000 or 150,000 additional wells drawing water from our underground aquifers.

To further compound the problem, each day we are converting more land to paved parking lots and rooftops (impermeable surfaces), thereby increasing runoff and decreasing natural ground infiltration that would normally help to recharge our groundwater sources.

Maybe it is time:

- To seriously consider our surface waters and groundwater as a natural resource with limits.
- To employ best management practices that will help to minimize the adverse impacts of new development by providing more ground infiltration, water quality treatment of stormwater runoff, etc.
- To promote land use decisions that are in the best interest of a watershed and the people that live within it, rather than viewing land planning as what is best for individual municipalities within the watershed.
- To make tough land use decisions that would protect stream valleys, floodplains, and riparian buffers in the interest of all.
- To change our thought processes from viewing key land parcels along streams, in aquifer recharge areas, and in stream valleys for their value as potential tax revenue. Instead we should view them for their value to protect and enhance water quality and quantity.
- To dedicate our efforts to make every citizen realize that we all contribute to our problem and therefore all need to recognize that everyone is an integral part of the solution to water concerns.

It is important to understand that the conservation district is not an agency that is against development and economic growth. We recognize that both must and will occur. However, even economic growth and development depends on a clean and abundant water supply. What we promote as a conservation district is responsible development, growth and land planning, and a recognition of the importance of our surface and ground waters in all of the decisions relating to this growth.

We can and must develop a better way of doing business and making decisions. In 10 or 15 years, or even next year, when the next drought occurs, will we look back and say "We are so glad we took the actions that we did to protect our water resources?" Or, will we be in the middle of another drought emergency with mandatory restrictions as the big solution?

Maybe it is time? No, it is time.

To Analyze Milk Production Costs

No one seems to enjoy preparing the records needed to file income tax reports. However, one benefit of this process is it forces us to summarize information about our operation's income and expenses.

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent in Lancaster County, points out that while you are doing this work you should take this opportunity to learn as much as possible from these records.

As a business person, it is important to know what your itemized costs of production are. Do you know? It is very simple to calculate. Simply take the itemized list of expenses from your tax return and divide it by the hundredweight of milk shipped last year, which appears on your last milk check stub for the year. Don't forget to include depreciation and make adjustments for prepaid expenses and changes in accounts receivable and accounts payable. Also, exclude income and expenses related to nondairy related enterprises such as cash cropping, a custom operating business, other animal enterprises, etc.

You may want to lump all crop-related costs together, including the crop share of rent or mortgages, building and machinery depreciation and repairs, insurance, taxes, etc. If you add this to your purchased feed costs, you'll have a better idea of what your total feed costs are. But remember this also includes the cost of feeding heifers, bulls, etc.

Shirk also suggests you can also split out total replacement costs, including their share of the above feed costs plus their share of the mortgage or rent, taxes, insurance, building repairs, etc. and calculate replacement costs per hundredweight of milk.

You should then answer several other questions. How much less would your cost per hundredweight (or CWT) be if culling could be reduced? What other dairy income do you have other than milk sales? What does this amount to per CWT of milk produced? Could this be increased if you could reduce the number of cull cows sold at depressed prices and sell more cattle at higher prices? Answers to these questions can guide you as you evaluate management changes needed to have a profitable operation in the future.

To Prepare For Insect, Disease Management In Vegetable Transplants

Dr. Tim Elkner, horticultural agent in Lancaster County, recommends that you start your pest management program for your next greenhouse crop now. Pest management for vegetable transplant production is an integrated process and includes sanitation, sound cultural practices, the use of resistant cultivars (where possible), and finally, proper use of the correct pesticide.

Elkner said you should begin the season with a clean, weed-free disinfected greenhouse. This means clearing the growing area of any plant debris, weeds, and any discarded flats or tools. After cleanup, wash and disinfect empty benches, potting areas, storage shelves, tools, and leftover cell packs and flats that you plan to reuse. Your disinfecting solution can contain any of the sanitizing products such as Green-Shield, Physan 20, Triathlon, Zero Tol, or chlorine bleach (10 percent solution). Be sure to follow the manufacturer's directions when using any commercially prepared materials.

If you are using a 1-to-9 bleach solution, remember that it requires a 30-minute soak in order to be effective. Also, while chlorine bleach is an effective sanitizer, please note that there will be a 50 percent reduction in strength of a chlorine solution after just two hours. Therefore, you should prepare a new solution each time you plan to sanitize. This includes a new solution after lunch if you started working in the morning.

Once you have the growing area and equipment sanitized, be sure to avoid recontamination. Dirty hose nozzles or tools can contaminate potting soil and the general growing area. Be sure that everything brought into the area is clean. The floor or soil in the growing area is a good source of insects and diseases. Do not stand on the benches after they have been cleaned as you can easily move diseases up from the floor on your shoes. Use hooks to keep your hose nozzle off the floor. Ideally, grow your transplants off the floor as well, either on benches or pallets. The floor in your greenhouse should be well drained and cleaned before plants are started there. Some growers have taken to covering the entire floor with black fiber cloth to both prevent weed growth and make cleanup easier after transplant production. Once dry, plant and soil residues are easily swept-up and removed.

Finally, always use disease-free media for transplant production. If using soil, be sure it is pasteurized before you bring it into the growing area. Successful soil pasteurization requires 30 minutes at 180 degrees Fahrenheit. Be sure to frequently sanitize and maintain clean areas where soil is mixed and pots are filled.

Elkner recommends that you have separate areas if you are producing both vegetable transplants and ornamentals. Bringing cuttings of flowering plants into the vegetable area can introduce pests such as thrips and diseases such as tobacco spotted wilt virus (TSWV). Look at your available space(s) and plan accordingly.

Take some time to prepare your vegetable transplant greenhouse now to reduce disease and insect problems later this season. Waiting until seeding time to start this chore may not leave enough time to do the job thoroughly. This could result in a great deal of time and money spent later to control a disease or insect infestation.

Quote Of The Week:

"What lies behind us and what lies before us are tiny matters compared to what lies within us."

— Ralph Waldo Emerson

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE EMPTINESS

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 55.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 85:4-9.

Last evening we went to a party and there was a magnificent buffet. I had some of this and some of that, in total quite a bit more than our normal evening meal. Still, when we got home from the party, I felt strangely unsatisfied. Instead of filling my emptiness, the great abundance of food left me feeling that I was lacking something.

Have you ever experienced something like that? Maybe not with food, but with something that promised to fill a void within you, but didn't? It is well known that many people who overeat are not satisfied with the quantities of food they ingest and it has been suggested that they eat to fill a void that cannot be filled by food. Some people drink to excess for the same reason. More of us, I suspect, try to fill the void with "things."

The exiled Jews in Babylon were probably startled with Isaiah's message: "Ho, every one who thirsts, come to the waters; and he who has no money, come, buy and eat" (55:1). He is talking about the basic necessities of life — water, milk, bread — but the exiled Jews are probably more affluent than they were in Judah. Some scholars believe that it was in Babylon that the Jews learned to be merchants. They had come to Babylon as exiles, but they prospered there.

'Moneytheism'

Still, for all of their success and ease in Babylon, many of them felt a sense of emptiness that the "good life" there could not fill. Isaiah knows this and he goes on to say, "Why do you spend your money for that which is not bread, and your labor for that which does not satisfy?"

These words, I believe, are just a relevant for us today. Some of us are "moneytheists" — money and the things money buys frequently take the place of God. Despite what we may profess on Sundays, it is that to which we look for our help, salvation, and fullness that constitutes the object of our true faith.

Our society is fascinated today with the gospel of "consumerism." Instead of the Kingdom of God, the "smart money" today is on a "global market." Does not Isaiah also speak to our complacency?

God's call is one of grace. It is offered to those who have "no money." The true essentials of life are offered "without money and without price." That which we can never earn from God, he gives us as a gift. All that is required is an awareness that the "emptiness" we experience can be filled only by his grace and a willingness to accept that gift.

That is the irony, isn't it? We try to buy things to fill the void that only the free gift from God can fill. This is the "God-shaped blank" that H.G. Wells said is in every person's heart.

Sins Of 'Good Men'

The good news of restoration which Isaiah brings here is also a call to repentance. "...let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord...for he will abundantly pardon" (55:7).

Although God offers his free gift to all, it cannot be received by the unrepentant. Very often this is because the unrepentant does not even realize he or she has anything of which to repent.

Reinhold Niebuhr once said that much evil is not done by evil men, but by good men who do not know they are not good. We do not know the depths of our own sinfulness because we generally do not think about it. "It is for want of thinking that we are undone," says Thomas Wilson.

The good news of God — "Come, buy wine and milk without money and without price" — always comes with a call to examine ourselves by the teachings of Jesus Christ, not the standards of society. As far as society is concerned, we may be OK, fine, or even outstanding. But we must remember that God's thoughts "are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, says the Lord" (55:8).

So, now is the time for us "return to the Lord," even if we didn't realize that we had been away from him. "Seek the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near" (55:6). God is always near, always to be found, but there are times in our lives when we can be more aware that he is ready and waiting to fill our emptiness.

Patz

ENVIRONMENTAL
FRIENDLY

The Patz Non-Clogging Screen prevents any solid material from entering the Patz Pulsator Pump which would result in blockage and pump burn out

The Patz Manure Harvester takes advantage of the concentration of phosphorus in the manure solids by removing up to 50% of the solids from dairy manure A significant amount of the phosphorus is then concentrated in a much smaller volume What makes the Patz Manure Harvester different is that both the small and larger solid particles are removed, unlike some other separators that remove only the larger particles

The Patz Pulsator land applies the treated liquids using a pulsating jet action to disperse liquids on preselected sites The Patz Pulsator virtually eliminates odor Liquids are applied in an environmentally acceptable method

The Patz Pulsator Pump is fed treated liquids from the surface of the storage area via a floating suction line from the Patz Non-Clogging Screen The Patz Pulsator Pump moves the treated liquids to a site determined by your nutrient management plan for land application

The Patz Aerator encourages the aerobic digestion of the remaining liquids This virtually eliminates the odor emanating from the storage area, making neighbors more willing to accept the presence of your operation Also since the liquids are removed from the top of the storage basin, additional phosphorus reductions are possible from the settling and aeration process

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Jan. 4, 2002

Second Year Of Federal Order Reform
Prices Complete

- December numbers announced.
- 2001 average Class III was $13.10/CWT.
- 2001 average Class IV was $13.76/CWT.
- Outlook for 2002.

The final numbers for 2001 are in. USDA just released the federal order class prices for December. This wraps up year 2 of the new pricing formulas under federal order reform. 2001 represents a major change from 2000.

First, let's review the December 2001 numbers.

The Class I mover was already announced at $11.98 per CWT. That represents a drop of $3.78 per CWT from November 2001. The December Class III price was $11.80 per CWT, up $0.49 per CWT from the month before. This was because of a $0.044/pound increase in cheese prices in December.

The Class IV price for December was $11.79 per CWT. This was a decline of $0.18 per CWT from the month before because of slight declines in both butter and nonfat dry milk prices. The December Class II price was $12.61 per CWT, down $0.17 from the month before because of the lower butter and nonfat dry milk prices.

So how did 2001 federal order prices compare to 2000? Without a doubt, 2001 prices were much better. The Class III price averaged $13.10 per CWT in 2001 compared to $9.74 per CWT in 2000. This was because of higher cheese prices. The 2001 NASS cheese price averaged $1.43 per pound in 2001 compared to $1.13 per pound in 2000. The Class IV price averaged $13.76 per CWT in 2001 compared to $11.83 in 2000. The Class IV price was much higher in 2001 because of a strong butter price.

The NASS survey butter price averaged $1.63 per pound in 2001 compared to $1.14 per pound in 2000. On the negative side, prices for nonfat dry milk fell 3 cents per pound from the year before to $0.98 in 2001. This was due in large part to a reduction in the support price for nonfat dry milk from $1 per pound in 2000 to $0.90 per pound in the spring of 2001. As a result, the Class IV price was only $0.65 per CWT higher than the Class III price in 2001, compared to a difference of $2.09 in 2000.

So what does 2002 outlook hold for the U.S. dairy industry?

Well, it depends on many factors. Let's start with the milk supply. We are seeing a gradual recovery in milk output per cow and cow numbers. Some estimates call for a 2.7 percent growth in the milk supply in 2002 over the year before. Other estimates, however, are as low as a 1 percent growth. The lower the growth rate, the higher milk prices will be.

The other factor is demand for dairy products. That depends in part on the health of the U.S. economy. It looks like the overall economy will continue to be a drain on growth in demand for dairy products.

As of Jan. 3, the futures market at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange is expecting stronger growth in milk prices the second half of 2002. The Class III futures are expected to grow from $11.45 per CWT in January to $12.41 by June 2002. Then it will grow from $13.15 per CWT in July to $13.35 by September 2002. The 2002 annual average for the Class III price is $12.31 per CWT, about $0.79 per CWT below the 2001 average.

The Class IV futures are expected to grow from $12.10 per CWT in January to $12.55 by June 2002. It will then remain at about $12.85 through November 2002. The 2002 average Class IV price is about $12.52, or $1.24 per CWT below the 2001 average. The reduction in the 2002 estimate for the Class IV price is probably because of a lower outlook for butter prices, and expectations for another reduction in the support price for nonfat dry milk.

The Senate version of the dairy title to the Farm Bill is still being debated. For information and analysis of the Daschle Substitute, see my Website at http://dairyoutlook.aers.psu.edu/

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Jan 4 Receipts This week 41,400 last week Holiday, year ago 56,300 There were not enough feeder cattle marketed across the nation last week to allow a comparison for this week Many markets remained closed this week for New Year's, however the limited sales available revealed a firm undertone as reported by the USDA's Livestock Market News Service. Buyers were encouraged by gains on the futures market during the abbreviated holiday sessions, although the board turned lower late this past week. December Live Cattle contracts left the board at a premium to cash, which brought on a few deliveries. Also, February and April fat futures are trading considerably higher than current cash levels. This has been supported by reports of low feeder placements and an expected tight supply of market-ready fed cattle this spring. However, cattle feeders continue to struggle with record-heavy carcass weights and the red ink on recent closeouts made this New Year's hangover worse than most.

Despite the beating that cattle feeders have been taking, they continue to replace inventories in order to cash-in when things get better. Midwestern producers are set to sell another round of calves and hope to benefit from the idea that placements have been low. Calf weights should be even bigger than usual for this time of year. Many calves across parts of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri have yet to have snow on their backs. Moisture continues minimal in the winter wheat regions and many backgrounders find their wheat pasture to be merely a large rented corral in which to feed hay. The Southeast also got a taste of the western life this week as snow fell as far south as Mississippi and central Georgia. Forecasters are calling for the weather to remain very unusual and unpredictable, which will mean the same for feeder cattle market conditions This week's reported volume included 52 percent weighing over 600 lbs.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.6740-1.8090. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.6470-1.8225 mostly 1 6875-1.7280.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: 1.0000-1 0500; Class III - spot prices - 9200-9900

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 69, Out 00; last week - In 11, Out 0; last year - In 33, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 0, Out 0.

Milk production is steady and seasonally increasing. Excess supplies are less notable after the holidays as milk is again diverted into bottling facilities for school sessions. Class I demand in the South is also increasing as retailers restock shelves after a typical influx in demand following the recent winter storm. Tourist activity is increasing in Florida. As a result, milk shipments into Florida are higher and manufacturing intakes are lower. Milk silos are generally in balance to levels prior to the holidays, allowing manufacturers to produce more time consuming products like whole milk and high heat NDM.

Condensed skim sales are increasing as plants re- establish regular operating schedules. Most movement is occurring into Class III facilities for the increasing interest at cheese facilities. Some renewed ice cream interest is also appearing for Class II condensed skim, yet sales are mostly slow. Prices are lower for Class II and III condensed skim as January prices are realized.

Cream supplies are in better balance than in prior weeks. While supplies are not tight, prices are moving higher in light of increases in the weekly CME AA butter average. Cream movement into ice cream facilities is increasing for the seasonal interest while packaged cream production is lower. Churning activity is mostly steady to higher.

Dairy Producers Meeting At Clarion County Park

SHIPPENVILLE (Clarion Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension has planned an educational program for dairy producers at the Clarion County Park in Shippenville.

Dr. Mark Armfelt, DVM, dairy technical services specialist for Monsanto Dairy Business, will present a program on improving dairy profitability without expanding the dairy herd.

The meeting is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 18 at noon. Lunch will be provided for those who register with the Clarion County Extension Office at (814) 782-0033 by Jan. 14. The lunch is being provided courtesy of Agway and Monsanto Dairy Business representatives.

The program that will follow the luncheon will be a dairy discussion relating to ways to increase dairy farm profits without expanding your dairy herd. Producers are aware they need to increase profits in these times of dairy price volatility to stay competitive in the dairy industry.

There is not too much dairy producers can do to increase milk prices, but there are opportunities you can use to increase profits without having to expand the dairy herd. Anyone in need of special accommodations should inform the extension at the time of registration.

Grange Meets At Farm Show

Several speakers told Grange members and non-Grange members about legislative activity on the state and federal level.

Congressman George Gekas (R-Dauphin) discussed a number of agricultural and terrorist related pieces of legislation. One major item is the upcoming Farm Bill. Gekas said, "There isn't one person in the Grange not interested in conservation, but the bill goes too far." The Congressman mirrored Grange policy concerning environmental sections of the bill. The Grange publicly stated its concern about the overzealous environmental sections of the Farm Bill during the legislative debate. Like the Grange, however, Gekas is encouraged with the rest of the Farm Bill proposal.

Another area of agricultural interest involves development of markets. "We need to continue to develop exports. It is the best possible thing to do for agriculture," Gekas said. "Every time we open an agricultural market, it is better for agriculture."

Terrorism was another topic of discussion. Gekas believes that more emphasis needs to be placed on visa control. "While we cannot shut down our borders because our commerce is based on freedom, we need to tighten visa surveillance and control."

State Representative Art Hershey (R-Chester), chairman of the House Environmental Resources and Energy Committee, discussed water resources legislation. He is introducing HB 2230 with at least 45 cosponsors. The legislation regulates water quantity, not water quality, and is a result of 15 water hearings conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection. All water users that consume an average of 10,000 gallons of water per day over a 30 -day period will have to register their water use. This is done in several Pennsylvania river basins.

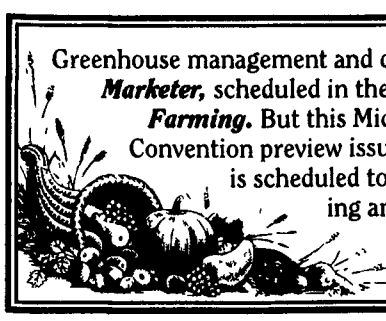
A statewide water plan will be implemented as a result of regional advisory boards comprised of a number of groups, including Pennsylvania conservation districts and agricultural advocates such as the Grange.

"There is wide agreement to do something," Hershey said. "We need to identify the areas where demand for water is more than the water supply."

Hershey also mentioned that out of the last six years, four of them had deficit rainfall. The Grange is planning on testifying at a Feb. 7 hearing in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives on this legislation.

State Sen. Michael Waugh (R-York) also discussed a number of issues of concern in the state Senate. As chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, he mentioned a number of legislative bills that have recently passed. "Significant to the Farm Show and number of children involved with the Future Farmers of America and the 4-H program, we amended the school code to allow for farm show type activities to be educational absences. Frankly, the education these kids get at the Farm Show is important and should be encouraged," Waugh said. Waugh also mentioned a legislative proposal that would create the groundwork on biofuels, reducing our dependence on foreign energy. "Producing our own fuel with agricultural products is a win-win for Pennsylvania agriculture," he said. This legislation will be introduced in the near future.

Brenda J. Shambaugh, legislative director for the Pennsylvania State Grange, said, "The Grange always provides this information sharing session during the farm show for Grange members and non-Grange members alike. It is an educational opportunity for all those participating in Farm Show activities."



Greenhouse management and care will be the focus of Grower & Marketer, scheduled in the January 26 issue of Lancaster Farming. But this Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention preview issue, with maps and schedules, also is scheduled to include a feature on mum growing and other items of interest to the eastern vegetable, fruit, nursery, and direct marketing industries.

Beshore Farm Wins Farm Show Hay Competition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Beshore Farms of New Cumberland, York County, was crowned the grand champion of the hay competition with an alfalfa grass mixed entry on Jan. 4 at the 86th Annual Pennsylvania Farm Show. Receiving reserve champion was Heidel Hollow Farm of Germansville, Lehigh County, with an entry of timothy grass hay.

Judge Lester Vough of Brookeville, MD, evaluated the hay classes. In his evaluation, he looked at the entry's stage of maturity, leafiness, color, odor, and the presence of any foreign material such as weeds or sticks. Also, each entry is given chemical scores for protein content and feed and dollar values per ton of hay. When talking about his champions, he judge referred to the champion alfalfa as "having a very high feed value," while the reserve is quoted as being "one of the best Timothy samples I have ever seen." He also referred to Mid-Atlantic region as having an adequate hay supply through the rest of the winter.

Judge Murray Fisk, Tunkhannock, evaluated 49 entries in the Small Grains Competition at the 86th Farm Show. Small Grains are broken down into five divisions: wheat, oats, barley, soybeans, and miscellaneous. Two Juniata County natives were crowned grand champions, as Sarah Bargo, Port Royal claimed the champion wheat honors and John Shearer, Port Royal, was crowned champion oats. Also, David Wickard, Carlisle, Cumberland Co., was named grand champion barley. Judge Fisk evaluated the entrants on purity of the seeds, their bushel weight, and seed quality characteristics such as cracked grains, insect, or disease injuries. Timothy seed and Rye were also exhibited and placed.

What's In A Market Report?

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) collects and distributes price and sales reports on farm products to provide equal access to both buyers and sellers on current marketing information.

Uniform standards (such as quality grade and yield grade) on which to quote prices have been established for each commodity. The commodity's price basis — per-hundred weight, per-head, per-ton, per-bushel, etc. — should be noted in the report. Most livestock prices are reported on a per-hundred pound weight basis (CWT) with those on a per-head basis adequately noted. The weighted average is computed by dividing the total value of the sales by the total number of units sold.

For example: "Choice 2-3 steers, 1100-1400 lbs, sold 65-68.00" means the market reporter considered those steers of Choice quality, ranging from 1,100 to 1,400 pounds, with the estimated yield of closely trimmed retail cuts graded at 2-3 (on a scale of 1-5 yield grades) and at prices ranging 65 to 68 cents per-pound live weight.

. The word "market" can refer to the geographic location where the commodity is traded or the price at which it is traded. Market reports may denote market activity, price trend, supply, demand and undertone. An explanation of these terms follows:

- MARKET ACTIVITY: The pace at which sales are made.
  Active - Supplies readily clearing the market.
  Moderate - Supplies clearing at a reasonable rate.
  Slow - Supplies are not clearing the market.
  Inactive - Sales are intermittent with few buyers or sellers.
- TREND: The direction in which prices are moving in relation to trading in the previous reporting period.
  Higher - Majority of sales are at prices measurably higher.
  Firm - Prices are higher, but not measurably so.
  Steady - Prices are unchanged.
  Weak - Prices are lower, but not measurably so.
  Lower - Prices for most sales are lower.
- SUPPLY: The quantity of the commodity currently available.
  Heavy - Volume of supply is above average.
- DEMAND: The desire to possess a commodity coupled with the willingness and ability to pay.
  Very Good - Offerings or supplies are rapidly absorbed.
  Good - Firm confidence on the part of buyers that general market conditions are good. Trading is more active than normal.
  Moderate - Average buyer interest and trading.
  Light - Demand is below average.
  Very Light - Few buyers are interested in trading.
- UNDERTONE: Sense of direction in a given market situation.

USDA To Increase Assessments On Imported Pork Products

WASHINGTON, D.C. — USDA is increasing assessments on imported pork and pork products. The increase — from seven-hundredths to one-tenth of a cent per pound, or the equivalent of fifteen-hundredths to twenty-two hundredths of a cent per kilogram — will become effective Jan. 28, 2002.

The increase reflects the 36 percent increase in hog prices paid at major U.S. markets last year. The rate of assessment, which was increased from 0.35 to 0.45 of one percent of market price effective Sept. 3, 1995, remains unchanged.

This increase will bring importer assessments more in line with those being paid by domestic producers.

Assessments on imported pork and pork products are established by formula each year, based on U.S. market prices for hogs. Assessments on domestic and imported pork are authorized by the Pork Promotion, Research, and Consumer Information Act of 1985. The assessments fund research and promotional activities designed to strengthen the position of pork in the marketplace.

Notice of the increase appeared as a final rule in the Dec. 28 Federal Register. Copies of the final rule are available from the Marketing Programs Branch, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA Stop 0251, 1400 Independence Ave. SW, Washington, DC 20250-0251, (202) 720-1115.

Farm Show Junior Market Lamb Competition Recognizes Exemplary Achievement

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The junior market lamb competition this week at the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show was not just your typical livestock show.

Fourteen-year-old Denise Hardisky of Nicholson could testify to that fact. Denise rose to the top of her age division in the outstanding young shepherd competition Tuesday, Jan. 8.

The shepherd competition was designed to recognize and encourage those 4-H and FFA members who have acquired a fundamental knowledge of sheep management practices. Contestants answered questions pertaining to the following five categories: quality assurance and health, meats, equipment identification and use, feeding and nutrition, and management. Each category was worth 100 points, for a total of 500 points.

Aside from the monetary awards, the top individual in each of the four age divisions of the shepherd competition received the honor of being moved to the beginning of the sale order in the junior market lamb sale. Although 213 market lambs were exhibited at the Farm Show, only 120 lambs were deemed eligible for sale, based upon their placings in the junior market lamb show.

Denise Hardisky's market lamb missed sale eligibility by one placing in the market lamb show; however, her outstanding performance in the shepherd competition will allow her to be eligible to sell her lamb. Not only that, but Denise will also sell her lamb at the beginning of the sale order, an honor usually reserved only for champion lambs.

Denise, who has been exhibiting animals at the Farm Show since she was eight, says she has learned a lot about agriculture by living on a sheep farm. She said, "The shepherd's competition saved me this time, allowing me to make the sale. It is a good opportunity for those that raise their own lambs to see the benefits of their hard work."

While most junior market lamb shows emphasize only lamb quality, the Farm Show competition sets itself apart by rewarding individuals for the knowledge they have gained from raising animals. This is a remarkable step in the right direction for the agriculture industry.

Northampton Takes First In All Categories Of Potato Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Students age 8-18 competed in the 4-H Potato Grading and Identification Contest at the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Three different stations were set up for the competition and students were asked to identify class, grades, and defects found in potatoes. In the end, all three categories were added up and scores were tallied up according to correct number of answers.

The first table held 40 defective potatoes, each potato having a different defect. Defects consisted of air cracks, blight, bruises, cuts, cry rot, greening, growth crack, grub or slug, hollow heart, misshapen, scab, Rhizoctonia, rodent, second growth, shriveling, skin checks, sprouts, sunburn, wet breakdown and wireworm and wiregrass. Some defects were obvious while others were hard to catch.

The second table held classes of a group of five or six potatoes lying on a plate. The table was also split into two halves, the A Class and the B Class. The students were asked to place the potatoes in the best order by ripeness for both groups. This section of the grading contest accounted for 50 out of the 500 possible points.

The final test was a race against the clock, as students rushed around a table of 100 potatoes and marked off those potatoes that were out of grade. Five points were deducted for each minute over the first 60 seconds of the race. This section was probably the hardest for the students to grade out of all three of the tests.

Individual and group scores are as follows:

A Team: 1. Northampton, 1382.5. 2. Lehigh, 1289.0. 3. Adams, 1259.5.

B Team: 1. Northampton, 1265.5. 2. Lehigh B2, 1225.5. 3. Lehigh B1, 1182.0.

Individuals: 1. Andrew Hower, Northampton, 468.0. 2. Travis Hahn, Northampton, 464.0. 3. Crissy Van Schoirk, Northampton, 450.5.

Supreme Champion Hampshire Earns Top Dollar At Sale

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Wetzel family from Rossiter claimed $5,700 for their supreme champion consignment at the 86th Bred Gilt Sale at the 2002 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

This amount has set a new Farm Show Record for the gilt sale, the last high being $2,425 back in 1991.

This prize-winning Hampshire, a daughter sired by TV08 Sweet, serviced and due in March to Billboard 4-3, was noted by Judge Al Christian as a "fine representative of the breed."

He said that Hampshires, developed in America with breeding of European decent, are popular in market hog show rings and are excellent market animals because of the breed's tendency toward lean muscle. This animal was no exception, presenting herself as "a spectacular individual excelling in frame size, length of body, and muscle volume."

The second high seller was the reserve champion Hampshire, also owned by Ken Wetzel and family. The gilt bought $1,050 by John Tigner Jr. of Hartley, Del.

The 2002 Bred Gilt Sale, which immediately followed the selection of supreme champion, averaged $424 on 177 head of hogs, and drew in buyers from 13 different states.

Senate Version Of Farm Bill: Analysis Of The Daschle Substitute

Penn State

The Farm Bill is working its way through the U.S. Congress. The House completed their version last year, which contained only an extension of the dairy price support program. The Senate ended the year without an agreement on their version of the farm bill.

A number of critical issues remain unresolved, including the dairy title. The current Senate version of the Farm Bill contains a dairy title that uses counter cyclical program payments that increase when milk prices decline. That bill, referred to as the "Daschle Substitute," represents a compromise from an earlier bill called Harkin Senate Bill no. 1731. The dairy title to the Daschle Substitute has strong implications for the Northeast dairy industry.

Dairy Provisions In The 'Daschle Substitute'

The dairy title to the Daschle Farm Bill contains three separate programs:

1. Milk Price Support Program
2. Dairy Market Loss Assistance Program
3. Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program

The current Milk Price Support Program is extended under this bill from May 31, 2002 to Dec. 31, 2006. Thus the program that supports market prices for butter, nonfat dry milk and cheese is extended an additional four years and seven months.

The Dairy Market Loss Assistance Program provides counter cyclical payments to producers located outside the Northeast whenever the all-milk price in any quarter falls below a rolling five-year average price. The payment rate is equal to 40 percent of the amount by which the average price of milk in a given quarter falls below the average price of milk for the same quarter during the previous five years. So, if the all-milk price in the current quarter is $13 per hundredweight (CWT) and the five-year average all-milk price for the same quarter was $15 per CWT, the payment rate would be $0.80 per CWT (($15 - $13) X~ 0.4).

The Dairy Market Loss Assistance Program contains three program limitations. First, it is for producers located outside the Northeast (to be explained below). Second, the payment rate for an individual producer is subject to a production base equal to average milk marketings for fiscal years 1999 through 2001, or eight million pounds, whichever is lower. Third, total payments under the program have a budgetary ceiling of $1.5 billion for the period Dec. 1, 2001 through Sept. 30, 2005.

Finally, the Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program essentially provides a federal payment whenever the federal order Class I price for Boston falls below $16.94 per CWT. Thus the federal order Class I price — which rises and falls with market forces — is unaffected by this new program. The program is for producers located in the 12 Northeast states of Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, and West Virginia.

The Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program works by providing a federal payment each month equal to 45 percent of the positive difference between $16.94 and the Boston Class I price. For example, suppose the Class I price of milk in Boston in a given month is $15.94 per CWT. The program payment would be equal to $0.45 (($16.94 - $15.94) X 0.45). No program payments are made if the monthly Class I price for milk in Boston exceeds $16.94 per CWT. Producers under this program face the same annual production caps outlined above (eight million pounds per farm per year). The program also has a budget ceiling of $500 million over the period Dec. 1, 2001 through Sept. 30, 2005.

An analysis of the Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program is provided below for the FY-2002 marketing year. According to the bill, program benefits the first year are only available during the months December 2001 through September 2002 (10 months). Analysis for the rest of the bill and for the remaining period, marketing years FY-2003 - FY-2005, is available on my Website: http://dairyoutlook.aers.psu.edu/.

Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program

An analysis of the Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program requires a forecast of the Class I price of milk for Boston for the current fiscal year (Oct. 1, 2001 through Sept. 30, 2002). Based on this forecast, the average payment rate under the program is estimated to be $0.77 per CWT for the 10-month period December 2001 - September 2002.

The next step is to compute the base level of milk marketings and percent of milk eligible for the program payments for each of the 12 Northeast states. Producers are eligible to receive program payments on average marketings for fiscal years 1999 through 2001 subject to the eight million pound cap.

The applicable state level production base was computed in Table 1. Data from USDA's Milk Production report for 2000 indicates that about 88 percent of the milk produced in the Northeast was from farms with less than 500 cows. These Northeast dairy farms marketed less than eight million pounds per year.

SPEAKING OF COMMUNICATION — LEARNING ENGLISH
Vinton Smith
Dairy Agent
Adams, Cumberland
And York Counties

An earlier article reviewed the importance of communicating with your dairy farm employees, especially those who speak a completely different language. That column also reviewed the important reasons why you should consider learning Spanish if you are employing Hispanic workers.

I also mentioned another important aspect of employing and communicating with Hispanic workers. That was to help them learn English. While the primary responsibility should be on the manager to learn Spanish, he or she should also strongly encourage Hispanic workers to learn English and improve their communication skills. Most Hispanic workers want to be able to speak English and are eager to put a little effort forth to learn, especially if they see you learning Spanish.

The keys to helping your Hispanic workers learn English is to provide them with right motivation and resources that will enable them to learn a new language. Simply providing encouragement to study English without added resources or providing books, tapes, and training in English without motivating them to learn will not give you the results you want. Many workers will likely continue to speak Spanish and say to you, "No hablo ingls. (I don't speak English)."

There are two motivational techniques that have worked very well on many dairy farms. They are 1) lead by example through learning Spanish and 2) provide financial incentives to the employees who put out a lot of effort and actually learn English.

Leading By Example

Farm owners and managers who begin to learn Spanish and try communicating with their Hispanic workers will find that the workers are suddenly more interested in trying to learn English. In addition, they will typically be much more likely to try speaking English phrases and terms.

There is one primary reason that "leading by example" is a very effective method of motivating the Hispanic employees to learn and use English. That reason is because of the employee/supervisor relationship. Employees often feel a certain amount of apprehension when talking to their supervisor under normal situations. When the language barrier is added to that relationship, the employees feel even more apprehension.

Many Hispanic workers tend to shy away from speaking English to their supervisors, including those who are capable of speaking some English, because they don't want to look uneducated in front of "the boss." Trying to speak a new language through learning vocabulary, context, and dialects is challenging. Once you show them that it is OK to "stumble across words and phrases" as you work to learn Spanish, they will realize that it is also okay for them to do the same as they learn English.

Financial Incentives

Financial incentives or bonuses to the Hispanic workers are often effective at getting workers to attend classes and practice English. Often, financial incentives are the leading factor that originally motivates potential workers to leave their native country and to look for work in the U.S. When they have an opportunity to earn more money by attending English classes, they will often take you up on your offer.

I suggest that you pay the cost of a tutor or the tuition for English classes. In addition, once employees complete certain classes or predetermined levels of advancement, he or she should earn bonuses. Be certain that the bonus is in line with the amount of commitment that an employee will need to put forth as he or she is learning English.

As the Hispanic workers strive to learn English and you are striving to learn Spanish, challenge each other as you are working together. Help each other to learn additional words and phrases that are important to working on a dairy farm. You and your employees will discover a very rewarding, fun, and cooperative relationship. Furthermore, you will have employees that you can communicate with and train to do their jobs better. You will certainly find many other benefits as you and your Hispanic employees learn each other's language.

The 2001 corn hybrid test reports are scheduled to be included in Corn Talk, the official publication of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association, scheduled for the January 19 issue of Lancaster Farming. Also scheduled are stories on a no-till Five-Acre Corn Club class winner and using corn for fuel. The issue is scheduled to include news from the National Corn Growers Association as well as a farm calendar of upcoming industry events.

Crop Insurance Information Meetings Scheduled In Northeast Pennsylvania

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) and Penn State Extension in Bradford and Sullivan County have scheduled a pair of informational meetings to help local growers get a better handle on the benefits of crop insurance and to increase the participation of farmers in crop insurance programs to protect their income.

Both meetings will take place at the conference room of the Stoll Natural Resource Center in Wysox, Tuesday, Jan. 22. The first meeting will be conducted from 1-3 p.m. and the second from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Growers only need to attend one meeting at their convenience. The principle presenter of the program will be Dr. Jayson Harper, professor of agricultural economists from Penn State University, who has been working closely with the PDA on this educational effort.

Several reasons for this effort exist but chief among them is the federal government's desire to replace ad hoc disaster assistance programs with a producer safety net based on a farmer's actual production history and insurance principles.

Crop insurance is a valuable risk management tool which allows farmers to insure against losses due to weather conditions, fire, insects, disease, irrigation water supply failure and wildlife. Crop insurance will protect Pennsylvania agriculture.

Crop insurance is federally subsidized and is sold by private crop insurance agents. During 1996-2000, Pennsylvania farmers with crop insurance received $4.08 for crop losses for every $1 they paid in premiums.

A minimum level of crop insurance called CAT insurance is available to all farmers regardless of size at no premium cost (all premiums are paid by the Federal government). Higher levels of crop insurance (buy-up protection) are also federally subsidized, with farmers paying only 33-62 percent of the actual cost of the insurance depending on the level of coverage selected.

Additionally, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is a strong supporter of crop insurance and has allocated funds in 2002 to help farmers buy crop insurance. This money will be used to pay the $100 policy application fee for CAT insurance and the $30 application fee for buy-up protection. An additional 10 percent of the cost of buy-up protection will also be paid by the state, so Pennsylvania farmers will pay for only 23-52 percent of the actual cost of this coverage (a 16-30 percent discount).

The end result is that CAT insurance is free and buy-up protection is discounted in 2002, but this will not last and farmers will need to act if they wish to take advantage of this opportunity.

Smithfield Foods' VP To Speak At Cattle Feeder's Day

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Smithfield Foods Inc. entry into the beef business and subsequent buyout of the venerable Moyer Packing Company will be a major topic for discussion at the annual Lancaster Cattle Feeder's Day, Tuesday, Jan. 29, at the Lancaster County Farm and Home Center.

This annual event planned by Penn State has traditionally featured the latest developments in the cattle industry, and this year's program is no exception. Agenda topics include economics, marketing, custom feeding, crop insurance, results of a cattle feeding survey, and packing industry developments.

Through the years, cattle feeders and related industry personnel have come from all over Pennsylvania and neighboring states to attend Lancaster Cattle Feeder's Day. The meeting is free and open to anyone interested in the cattle industry. No reservations are necessary. Lunch tickets may be purchased until 11:30 a.m.

The doors open at 8:30 a.m. to allow time for viewing agribusiness exhibits and visiting with fellow beef producers. The program is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. with H. Louis Moore, Penn State ag economist, presenting "What's on the Horizon for Cattle Feeders?" Moore has been on the Penn State faculty for 45 years and continues to present up-to-date, informative guidelines on marketing for cattle feeders.

At 10:30 a.m., Chester D. Hughes, extension livestock agent, will present the results of the "Survey of Southeastern Pennsylvania Cattle Feeders," which was conducted during the summer of 2001.

A panel discussion on custom cattle feeding is scheduled for 10:45 a.m. On the panel will be John Comerford, Penn State extension beef specialist; John Winder, University of Vermont extension beef specialist; and Karl Hess, Certified Angus Beef feedlot owner, Lancaster County. General requirements for custom feeders will be offered followed by how calf producers can choose a custom feeder.

Prior to lunch, at 11:45 a.m., personnel from the Pennsylvania Beef Council will report briefly on the council's activities to promote the beef business.

After the lunch period, at 1:15 p.m., Steve VanLannen, group vice president of cattle procurement for Smithfield, will speak on his company's plans in the beef business and its merger of Moyer and Packerland Packing in Green Bay, Wis., into a beef processing subsidiary of Smithfield Foods, Inc. VanLannen works out of the Packerland facility in Green Bay.

"The Benefits of Crop Insurance" will be the last subject for discussion for the day. Scheduled for 2 p.m., Lynn Kime, Penn State extension ag economic development agent, will lead a discussion highlighting the advantages of crop insurance for Pennsylvania producers. Representatives for agricultural insurance agencies will be present to provide information and answer questions regarding protecting field crop investments.

The meeting will adjourn at 3 p.m.

Therefore, about 93 percent of the milk produced in the Northeast was eligible for program payments.

Of the 29.5 billion pounds of milk produced in the 12 Northeast states during FY-1999 - 2001, about 22.8 billion pounds is eligible for the program payments during fiscal year 2002.

The amount of milk eligible for the program payment in the Northeast is subject to two limitations 1) a reduced marketing year consisting of 10 months, and 2) a payment cap of eight million pounds per farm per year. Given a projected payment rate of $0.77 per CWT, total CCC outlays for the Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program during fiscal year 2002 is estimated to be $176.4 million.

[2] The payments for fiscal year 2002 are for December 1 2001 - September 30 2002
[3] Percent of milk that meets the 8 billion pound per year per farm cap on milk marketings
[4] Assumes a program payment rate of $0 772 per cwt

So what impact will such a program have on individual dairy farms during the first year of the program? This was estimated in Table 2 below for fiscal year 2002. The program payment of $0.77 per CWT was computed for four different size dairy farms in the Northeast. Only 10 of 12 months were eligible for the program payment in fiscal year 2002, thus milk marketings were adjusted accordingly. Farms marketing eight million pounds of milk per year would receive the program payment on roughly 6.67 million pounds (8 million pounds X 10/12). The analysis in Table 2 reveals that the 50 and 100 cow dairy farms would receive the program payment of $0.77 on 100 percent of their milk marketings for a total of $5,791 and $11,582, respectively, in fiscal year 2002. The 500-cow unit would receive the payment rate of $0.77 on 74 percent of their milk marketings for a total of $51,477. The 1,000-cow unit would receive the payment rate of $0.77 on 37 percent of their milk marketings for a total of $51,477.

Table 2 Estimate of the FY 2002 Impact of the Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program on Individual Dairy Farmers, by Herd Size

Amount eligible	Thou Lbs	750	1 500	6 667	6 667
Annual payment	Dollars	5 791	11 582	51 477	51 477

Note assumes each cow produces 18 000 pounds of milk per year Production caps are pro rated given the premiums are available on 10 of 12 months The analysis assumes a payment rate of $0 772 per cwt

Conclusions

The Daschle compromise will result in a four year dairy program that will have three distinct features: 1) an extension of the dairy price support program, 2) a separate fluid safety net program for the Northeast, and 3) a counter cyclical payment program for the rest of the United States.

The Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program, designed for dairy producers in 12 Northeast states, will provide a federal payment whenever the federal order Class I price for Boston falls below $16.94 per CWT. The Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program is estimated to generate an average program payment of about $0.77 per CWT the first year of the program, and $0.57 per CWT over the next three years. This annual estimate, however, can range from $0.23 to $0.91 per CWT. About 94 percent of all the milk produced in the Northeast will be eligible for the program payment.

The cost of this program will range from $63 — $252 million per year depending on market prices and the size of the program payments. Given average payments, the four-year cost of the program is estimated to be $649 million. With an annual average program payment of $0.57 per CWT, a Northeast farm with 50 cows producing 18,000 pounds of milk per cow would receive $5,126 per year, and a farm with 100 cows would receive $10,252.

Skillathon and Quiz Bowl

This year's Pa. Beef Expo will again provide juniors with an opportunity to test their knowledge at the annual Pa. Beef Expo Skillathon and Pa. Beef Expo Quiz Bowl.

This year's Beef Skillathon will be conducted Friday, March 29 from 8-10 a.m. at the Penn State Meats Laboratory, University Park. The Skillathon is an excellent opportunity for young beef enthusiasts to test their beef industry knowledge.

By incorporating project skills and industry basics in a series of mini-learning stations participants compete in areas such as identification of beef breeds, retail cuts, feed ingredients and feed safety. Divisions for the Skillathon include senior (16-21), intermediate (12-15), and junior (8-11).

The Beef Expo Quiz Bowl will also take place on Thursday, March 28, beginning with preliminaries at 3 p.m. Any teams of four PJCA, 4-H or FFA members are invited to compete. The competition will be divided into two divisions: 14- to 21-year-olds (seniors) and 8- to 13-year-olds (juniors). Primary Quiz Bowl topics will include nutrition, genetics, reproduction, animal health, marketing and promotion, and cattle breeds. The final Quiz Bowl competition will be at the annual PCA Awards Banquet to be conducted Thursday evening, March 28.

The Beef Skillathon and Quiz Bowl competitions are open to all PJCA, 4-H and FFA members. Individuals can join the PJCA for a $5 annual membership fee at the contest site. Four-member PJCA county, club or school teams in any division also are invited to participate. For more information contact Liz Smith at (717) 336-0553.

Lauren Ferringer Crowned 2002 Lamb And Wool Queen

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Lauren Ferringer was selected as the 2002 Lamb and Wool Queen at the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show. Ms. Ferringer looks forward to traveling across the state to promote the sheep and wool industry and to educate the public about the many benefits of sheep. As the Lamb and Wool Queen, Ferringer will have the opportunity to promote the sheep industry at Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers events, as well as in schools and at fairs around the state.

Ferringer's quest for Pennsylvania State Lamb and Wool Queen concluded with a final competition Jan. 7 that involved an interview and public education contest, which was open to Farm Show enthusiasts.

The five contestants were asked to create an educational display, give a speech, write an article, and be interviewed by a panel of three judges for five minutes. Each segment was worth 25 points.

Monday, the displays were moved to the Small Arena for public viewing. During the Sheep to Shawl Competition, contestants gave their speeches to the audience.

Following the speeches, the first runner-up, Jill Gevin, and second runner-up, Mary Zeigler, were announced. Gevin, the 17-year-old daughter of Milo and Margaret Gevin, hails from Cochranton, Crawford County. Zeigler, a 16-year-old York County 4-Her, is the daughter of Robert and Linda Zeigler.

As the Sheep to Shawl Competition drew to a close, Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes, Jr., congratulated Ferringer as the 2002 Lamb and Wool Queen. Lauren Ferringer, a 19-year-old from Home, Indiana County, is the daughter of Robert and Sandra Ferringer.

An 11-year 4-H member, Ferringer has raised purebred Suffolk sheep for exhibition at shows across the state. She has received numerous awards including master showman, master fitter, and the Farm Show Scholarship. A graduate of Marion Center Area High School, Ferringer participated in FFA, Varsity Softball, and Varsity Basketball.

Lauren currently attends the Indiana University of Pennsylvania; however, she plans to transfer to Penn State and to major in pre-veterinary science.

Tower Vue Breaks Through

Youngest Walton Leads Family's First Supreme

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Walton family of Tower Vue Holsteins is well known in the dairy show community.

Parents David and Kathy along with children Craig, Betsy, and Scott Walton have been exhibiting high quality Holsteins since 1989.

Four times the family from Carlisle has led one of their cows into the winner's circle to compete for top honors against the other breed champs.

This year's Farm Show marked a new level of achievement for the Waltons.

Tower Vue Counsel Sara-ET, Scott Walton's junior 3-year-old cow, was named best of the best at the dairy show.

"I'm excited," the youngest Walton said. "This is the first time we won supreme champion at the Farm Show."

Sara is classified VG-88, and boasts four maternal ancestors that have classified Excellent, including her dam Fountain Farm Blackstar Spice.

"She is just a complete young cow. She has tremendous balance and symmetry from end to end," said Alisa Fava Fasnacht, one of three judges making the final selection out of the six breed champions.

The Waltons manage Tower Vue Holsteins and Fountain Farm together with Kathy's parents and farm owners Harry and Aline Thompson.

Besides a busy show schedule, the family manages a milking string of about 80 Holsteins. Regarding the show side of the operation, "We've pretty much turned it over to the kids," David said.

Scott Walton is a junior at Carlisle High School and a member of the Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Club.

Reserve supreme champion went to Homeridge BBS Viv, a 5-year-old Jersey cow owned by Janet Ludwig and Molly Van Lieu of York Springs, Adams County.

Other breed champion exhibitors were Jeff and Michelle Reasner, Ayrshire; Joy Hess and Brock Widerman, Brown Swiss; Aaron Gable, Guernsey; and Keith Fisher, Milking Shorthorn.

The show posted the following results:

First Market Goats Auctioned At Farm Show

DAVE LEFEVER

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A $16,000 top bid for Katie Nolt's champion steer and the first appearance of market goats in the auction ring highlighted the 2002 Sale of Champions at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Prior to the sale, New Holland Sales Stables founder Norman Kolb was honored for his many years of dedication to the livestock industry.

Kolb, a well-known friend and benefactor of 4-H and FFA at the Farm Show, passed away last February. His family was presented with a plaque and received a standing ovation in his memory.

New Holland Sale Stables honored that memory, making both of the top purchases in the historic first sale of market goats. The grand champion was exhibited and consigned by Paul Shealer, Schuylkill County, bringing a final bid of $1,100.

The gavel went down at $800 for the reserve champion, con-

Farm Show Opens With International Banquet, Governor's Tour

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 200 guests from 70 countries, along with agribusiness representatives from about 100 Pennsylvania companies, attended the Agro 2002 International reception, trade show, and banquet late last week before the opening of the Farm Show.

More than 900 people altogether gathered in downtown Harrisburg at the Hilton and Towers at a gala reception and banquet late last week to honor burgeoning Pennsylvania trading partnerships established throughout the world.

"We are scheduling hundreds of customized business meetings for our international guests and Pennsylvania agribusinesses to foster relationships of mutual benefit for Pennsylvania agriculture and our friends from around the world," said Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes Jr.

Agro 2002 is the largest international event in Pennsylvania, according to event sponsors.

In remarks at the banquet, Pennsylvania Gov. Mark Schweiker told the group gathered at the gala event, "What you enjoy right now is a privilege," he said. "Think about it. A place like Afghanistan, you couldn't play a CD. And for the women here, perhaps you would not have been permitted to gather."

The terrorist attacks of September 11 showed the importance of developing world partnerships, according to Schweiker. "If September 11 drove anything home, it is that we are a special place, home to special people, and, yes, we can gather as we wish."

Said Schweiker, "Pennsylvania has a tremendous built-in advantage, when it comes to 'producing products for the planet' and competing, friends. We have Pennsylvania farmers. We have Pennsylvania farm families. We have Pennsylvania farming-related employees, 800,000 strong. That when they partner and ally, in short order, in short time, we have gone right past the billion-dollar mark when it comes to export opportunities. We are home to a special group of dedicated, free, determined people, young and old."

Schweiker welcomed the guests, friends, and family of Pennsylvania agriculture, speaking about the "tens of thousands of people who make their way to Harrisburg to see what Pennsylvania farming families have grown and nurtured for decades of effort."

Schweiker, who grew up in Bucks County, spoke about traveling to Poland and India and throughout the U.S. But he believes there is no more compelling moment, he said, than when he speaks about the products produced by Pennsylvanians gathered at the Farm Show.

In his opening remarks the following day in the Farm Show Large Arena, Schweiker reiterated his comments made at the Agro 2002 banquet the previous evening. He told thousands assembled in the arena that there isn't a day that goes by that he doesn't realize he is the "only governor in the country who holds this position as the result of the terror and the infamy of September 11," while living in a country that allows the company of "free people." Schweiker noted he is prideful "of the privileges of living in a free society."

Schweiker reminded those attending of the two young women who would be singing at the start of Farm Show, Heidi Miller and Kendy Gable. In Afghanistan, he said, the people "would not have seen a woman performing, the children who were inspired by her singing would not have been permitted to purchase her CD, because it was not an open society, but a closed society."

The tragic events of September 11 brought to mind, according to Pennsylvania's governor, about our privileges, including the "right of free assembly, and to express ourselves as we choose as a free people."

The governor also spoke about the slogan, "Products For the Planet."

"We show that product with passion and fervor and belief."

Schweiker said to those assembled at the start of Farm Show last Saturday, "I'll go morning, noon, and night to see to it that Pennsylvania farmers are given the support and the attention that they so richly deserve."

During the Agro 2002 banquet, Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes Jr. spoke to the international guests. He said, "Pennsylvania offers our hand to you, personally, as good friends."

Hayes remarked about how well the current administration has treated agriculture.

The governor has been "a gentleman who has always said 'yes,'" Hayes said. "The governor of Pennsylvania has never, ever said 'no' to Pennsylvania agriculture. He's filled with enthusiasm for good government and he's filled with enthusiasm for agriculture."

Prior to opening the Farm Show, Gov. Schweiker and his family were escorted on a tour of the Farm Show by Hayes and Farm Show Executive Director Dennis Grumbine.

Ag the Agro 2002 banquet, Hayes announced the selection of Hanover Shoe Farms, Inc. of Hanover; Dwight Lewis Lumber Co., Inc. of Hillsgrove; and Farmers Pride, Inc. of Fredericksburg, as the 2002 Agribusiness Award winners.

"Agriculture is the foundation that Pennsylvania was built on. The men and women of agriculture are an integral part of the fabric of this great state. The three companies being honored tonight are just a few of the many outstanding Pennsylvania agribusinesses that make this state's agricultural economy strong," said Hayes.

The awards were established to recognize agribusinesses that contribute to Pennsylvania's leading industry. The awards are presented to agriculture, food, and wood companies that make a special contribution to development and expansion of Pennsylvania agriculture, as well as a positive commitment in their local communities.

Three companies were recognized this year. The Category One award recipient ($16 million and under annual sales) was Hanover Shoe Farms, Inc. of Hanover. This Standardbred Horse company was founded in 1926 and sells Standardbred Horses across Pennsylvania and the world. Hanover Shoe Farms established the Standardbred Horse Sale in 1939.

The Standardbred Horse Sale is the largest standardbred sale in the world, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, drawing buyers from throughout the U.S. as well as Canada, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Germany, France, Austria, Italy, the United Kingdom, Russia, New Zealand and Australia. During peak season, 1,800 horses are stabled on the farm and the company employs 76 people. Hanover Shoe Farms, Inc. participates with

"Agro 2002 showcases to the world that Pennsylvania has 'Products for the Planet' featuring the very best of Pennsylvania agriculture," said Sam Hayes Jr., state agricultural secretary. "The Department of Agriculture is excited to host our international friends from over 70 countries at the week-long event."

Dwight Lewis Lumber Co., Inc. was named the Category Two winner ($16 to $50 million annual sales). Based in Hillsgrove and founded in 1941, Dwight Lewis Lumber products include hardwood lumber, flooring, paneling, and moldings. Their marketing base includes Pennsylvania and the Northeastern U.S.

Committed to the long-term health of Pennsylvania's forests, Dwight Lewis Lumber has two foresters certified by the Society of American Foresters and other technicians to insure proper forest regeneration.

In Category Three (more than $50 million annual sales), Farmer's Pride of Fredericksburg was recognized. Established in 1939, Farmer's Pride produces premium poultry products marketed in the eastern U.S. Farmer's Pride also exports to Japan and other countries. Farmer's Pride employs more than 700 people.

An active company in the community, Farmer's Pride is a member of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, the Agricultural Coalition of Pennsylvania, and the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce. The company is also an active participant in the Hinkelfest Chicken Festival, which benefits local organizations.

The companies were chosen based on sales, employment, and their participation in the development and expansion of Pennsylvania agribusiness within the company's area of expertise, as well as adherence to state and federal regulatory standards. More than $1 billion in agricultural products are exported from Pennsylvania annually.

In addition, Hayes recognized this year's Farm-City Award winners as part of the Agro 2002 International Celebration at the Harrisburg Hilton and Towers.

Hayes honored representatives of the Blair County Chamber of Commerce Farm-City Council, Fulton County Farm-City Council, and the Franklin County Farm-City Council for outstanding Farm-City programs in 2001.

"I would like to recognize the hard work of not only the Farm-City Councils that are being recognized tonight, but all of the councils throughout the state. It is through the spirit of volunteerism in these councils that helps to bring the message of agriculture to our suburban and urban neighbors. There is an increasing gap between our rural and urban neighbors. Through the work of the Farm-City program, we are able to bridge this gap and create a better quality of life for all citizens both in the town and townships," said Hayes.

The Blair County Chamber of Commerce Farm-City Council focused their efforts on education in many innovative and interesting ways. One of their more prominent events was a job exchange conducted with two well-known local celebrities and two farmers. Tyrone Mayor and Pat Stoner, along with reporter Joe Little, traded their business attire for that of a farmer to take a hands-on approach to learning about agriculture. Then, Randy Huntman and David Bigalow took a turn in business and government. In addition to these events, the county hosted several school trips, a mystery farm tour, and even a dairy night with the minor league baseball team, the Altoona Curve. Through their efforts, the Blair County Chamber of Commerce was able to reach more than 3,000 people with agriculture education materials.

The Fulton County Farm-City Council hosted thousands of people at several events throughout the year. Their Farm-City activities really heated up during the 2001 Fulton County Farm-City Celebration, which ran from September through November. During these three months, the county hosted an Ag Luncheon featuring several FFA and community leaders and a Farm City Youth Ag Expo, which featured educational stations and presentations aimed to educate students on the importance of agriculture. Among the other events were school field trips, farm tours, and a folk festival.

The final winner was the Franklin County Farm-City Council, which sponsored more than 14 events that reached an estimated 300,000 people. These events ranged from county fair booths, mall promotions, banquets, and media coverage to job exchanges, learning tours, and church sermons. Through these events, Franklin County residents were able to gain greater knowledge and agriculture perspective though hands-on experiences and activities. The council is already hard at work preparing for next year and has planned the first ever "open house" showcasing an Agriculture and Business/Industry Job Fair.

Farm-City activities are designed to increase public awareness of the tremendous contributions made by Pennsylvania's food and fiber industries and the challenges of meeting the world's increasing needs for agricultural products. The activities of the county Farm-City Councils help to generate a greater appreciation between the agriculture and business community and helping to bring rural and urban residents together.

To promote the Farm-City concept, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture hosted its fifth annual Farm-City Day, "A Story to Be Told . . . Lessons to Be Learned," in October. More than 3,000 elementary students from more than 30 schools participated in the day's events, which included educational agricultural learning activities.

Also, at a special reception in downtown Harrisburg Saturday evening, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes Jr. was honored by a contingent of Latin American trade representatives for his work in promoting international trade. They included Reina Espinoza, Reiloor/Ecuador; Romulo Aliatis, president, Chamber of Commerce of Portoviejo/Ecuador; Andres Ruiz, Hermanos Ruiz/Puerto Rico; Guillermo Flores and Roberto Espinoza, Pigments Vegetables/Mexico; Ricardo Arjona, Fitogral/Columbia; and Armando Schievenini, Rancho la Virgen/Mexico.

In a toast to Hayes by Armando Schievenini, Hayes was honored for being a "Latin American friend."

Said Schievenini, "Last month my friend, Samuel Hayes, honored me with his presence in Mexico. There, the vision that we have been talking about came alive in a concrete way with the exportation of bred heifers."

Schievenini spoke about the Export for Scholars Program, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, which exposes young college and high school students to "real-life agribusiness experiences."

'Without a doubt, the vision of Samuel Hayes needs to be recognized, not only as a state secretary of agriculture, but also as a great teacher who presents us with a model to follow through his vision when we consider international agriculture," said Schievenini.

State Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes Jr. was surrounded with praise by trade representatives last Saturday evening. A Latin American reception was held in the honor of Hayes in the Market Square Cafe in the Hilton Hotel in Harrisburg, with representatives from Colombian, Ecuadorian, Mexican, Dominican, Peruvian, and Puerto Rican delegations, in addition to members of the Pennsylvania Hispanic press. They included Reina Espinoza, Reiloor/Ecuador; Romula Aliatis, president, Chamber of Commerce, Portoviejo/Ecuador; Andres Ruiz, Hermanos Ruiz/Puerto Rico; Guillermo Flores and Roberto Espinoza, Pigmentos Vegetales/Mexico; Ricardo Arjona, Fitogral/Colombia; and Armando Schievenini, Rancho la Virgen/Mexico. Photo by Andy Andrews, editor

Convenience, Nutrition Beef Commercials Planned For Early 2002

DENVER, Colo. — Beef comes to national television early in 2002 with convenience and nutrition commercials aimed at cable and network viewers. The goal is to continue building awareness among 25-54 year-old moms of new heat-and-serve products and the nutritional value of beef.

Three TV schedules are planned for early in the new year, lasting three weeks each. In January, the convenience message will be emphasized.

In March, both convenience and nutrition will be the focus. Commercials in May will highlight nutrition only.

The commercials will air on popular shows such as "Ed," "Judging Amy," and "Everybody Loves Raymond," as well as cable programs like "Food TV" that are favored by the target audience. The commercials will run nearly 1,400 times in 2002 and will be seen by some-55 million women with children, about ten times each. This amounts to about 92 percent of U.S. women in the 25-54 age group.

"National advertising is working well — tracking studies show that 86 percent of consumers are now aware of the 'Beef. It's What's For Dinner' advertising, an all-time high," said Texas beef producer Linda Joy Stovall, chairman of the joint industry Advertising Committee.

"Awareness of the new heat-and-serve products is up to 62 percent, which is quite high considering these products have been on the market for only a couple of years. Studies also show that women's attitudes about the nutritional value of beef have been improving over the past couple of years."

The January commercials will be "Booster Seat" and "Grandma," two television spots introduced earlier this year. Both contain elements that have proven successful for the beef industry, including Aaron Copeland's "Rodeo" music, actor Sam Elliot's voice, and the "Beef. It's What's For Dinner" theme.

Stovall said commercials addressing the convenience of beef feature pot roast, beef tips, meat loaf and other hearty types of food especially popular in the winter months.

Both 30-second commercials contain humorous scenes that show how convenient beef entrees fit today's lifestyles. In "Booster Seat," a teenager comes downstairs to eat with his family, finding his old booster seat in the chair. "Been a while since the whole family has been at the table?" the narrator asks, as the mother serves a quick-to-prepare beef meal.

In the other commercial, a young boy is walking down the sidewalk when he detects an aroma he associates with his grandmother's cooking.

"Grandma," he whispers as he sprints down the street to his house, where he finds his mother pulling a quick-to-fix pot roast out of the microwave.

Record Year For Lancaster Farmland Trust

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Last year was an excellent year for farmland preservation in Lancaster County.

Lancaster Farmland Trust preserved a record 23 farms, representing 1,297 acres. This makes for a total of 141 preserved farms and 9,099 acres. Add that to the 420 farms and 37,009 acres preserved by the County Agriculture Preserve Board, and it is clear the county is making significant strides toward ensuring that agriculture as an industry and a way of life has a secure place for generations to come.

Six of the 23 preserved farms are located in Colerain Township. There are three farms in West Hempfield Township, and two in Manheim, Providence, and Rapho townships. One farm was preserved in each of the following townships: Drumore, Earl, East Cocalico, Elizabeth, Manor, Martic, Sadsbury, and West Donegal. Old Order Amish preserved six of the total farms, and two farms were preserved and subsequently purchased by Old Order Amish.

Five of the farms were donated easements, and 18 were bargain sale payments, with sizable donative components. In fact, the total easement value donated by the farm owners for these 23 farms was more than $3 million.

"While the success of last year is monumental, the Trust believes now is not the time to become complacent," said Heidi Schellenger, Trust's director of land preservation. "Farmland is still being converted to residential, commercial, and industrial uses at an alarming rate. The Lancaster County Planning Commission recently announced that only 270,000 acres remain zoned for agriculture. That's less than half the county's 600,000 acres. We must work quickly to ensure that we preserve a critical mass of farmland before it is too late."

Bred-And-Owned Animals Shine At Junior Beef Breeding Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Bred-and-owned animals topped many of the divisions during Wednesday's junior beef show.

Tom Turner, Ohio State University, judged the junior beef show. Willard Lemaster, University of Maryland, selected exhibitors to come back into the ring for the showmanship competition which followed the beef shows.

Angus Show

Bred-and-owned heifers came to the fore in the Angus show, with both champion and reserve going to heifers bred and owned by their exhibitors.

Cory Thompson, 14, Wellsville, and spring yearling, Cedar Hill Miss Charlie 4, won grand champion placing in the Angus show. Thompson, who has 10 head of cattle of his own, supplements his beef show string with seven dairy show cattle.

He is the son of Roy and Tammy Thompson, who farm the 4,000 acres of Cedar Hill Farm. Thompson, who "loves being around cattle," is hoping to have his own dairy operation in the future.

His younger sister, Amanda, is Pennsylvania's Angus Sweetheart.

Denton Grim, 14, East Berlin, took BCA Faith to reserve champion placing. The heifer is one of 18 head of Angus on their 15 rented acres. He is the son of Greg Grim and Beth Landis, and had three siblings also exhibiting Angus at the Farm Show. The family has shown for five years at the Farm Show.

Maine-Anjou Show

Although the winning heifers were younger than the other females in the ring, their "femininity and balance," according to judge Turner, earned them top placings.

Sara Jo Campbell, 16, of Sycamore, Green County, and AMC Mattocks Ms Madison took grand champion honors for Campbell Show Cows. Sara, the daughter of Jamie and Jackie Campbell, lives on 270 acres with Maine-Anjou, Shorthorn, and Crossbred cattle.

In her ninth year of showing, she had six cattle at the Farm Show and exhibits animals at 12-13 shows per year. She is planning to major in genetics in college.

Christine Yoder, 14, and "Precious," turned in not only a reserve champion win but also came in as bred-and-owned champion during the show. The April calf "has been my baby — she's nice, although I think she's small for her age," said Yoder.

From 6-acre "Papa's Girls Cattle Company" in Conneautville, Christine has had cattle as long as she can remember. She also brought a steer for exhibition.

Limousin

In the Limousin show, Kristy Dietrich, 17, Hamburg, capture the grand champion placing with KSDL Miss Fireball, a heifer that brought home reserve grand champion heifer placing in the open show on Sunday. Kristy has raised the calf from the beginning, as she bought the calf's mother bred.

She brought two Limousin heifer and one crossbred steer to the Farm Show. At home the Dietrichs have 75 head of feeder cattle and 25 head of cattle for breeding.

Also in the Limousin show, Tina Brown, 14, Red Lion, earned reserve champion honors with A Gal Named Sue. The daughter of James and Christine Brown, Tina lives on a three-acre, four-head of cattle farm. This is her fourth year at the Farm Show. In addition to Susie Tina brought a crossbred steer to the Farm Show.

Hereford Show

Margeaux Firestine came up big in the Hereford show, taking home both champion and reserve placings. The champion is bred-and-owned, and Margeaux earned the top two places in the bred-and-owned class, with her sister, Morgan, winning the third place spot.

She is the daughter of Mike and Martene Firestine, Womelsdorf, owners of MAP Farm. Her sister, Morgan, Pennsylvania Hereford Queen, also exhibited Herefords at the show. The family has a 30-head herd of purebred registered Herefords and farm 200 acres.

Shorthorn Show

In the Shorthorn show, the heifer that moved up the ranks to be named supreme champion heifer on Monday again rose to the top of the competition to become grand champion.

WCC Bunny is owned by Brooke Keeney, 10. The heifer was bred by her grandfather, Donald Walter, Airville. The daughter of Jim and Annette Keeney, Felton, York County, she has been exhibiting cattle for two years as a member of the York County 4-H Beef Club. She also exhibited a Maine-Anjou heifer in the breeding show.

Winning the reserve champion placing was Nate Tice's home-bred Sank Elmers Rodeo Stuff. A Farm Show veteran of eight years, he also took home a first in the bred and owned class with the heifer. Nate already has his Shorthorn steer for next year and is anticipating calving out several Shorthorns this spring. He shows for Tice Farms, a veal and show animal operation.

Simmental Show

Bred-and-owned animals also topped the competition in the Simmental show.

The grand champion Simmental, a "total package" according to judge Turner, was Tim Schaeffer's S&S Miss Smarty Pants. Schaeffer hails from S&S Simmentals, Myerstown, a 60-acre farm with 30 head herd of Simmentals and Crossbreds.

In his four years of Farm Shows, Schaeffer has brought home three grand champion heifer honors and has won the junior show three times — or bred the winning heifer.

Shelby Rarick, Fleetwood, captured reserve champion placing with K&K Black Hoku. She brought a string of six Simmentals, one Limousin, and one steer to the Farm Show. This year marked the third year exhibiting at the event for the 9-year-old.

Nine Farm Show Scholarship Foundation Winners Named

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Nine outstanding Pennsylvania scholars were honored Thursday when the Pennsylvania Farm Show Scholarship Foundation announced the winners of its ninth annual scholarship contest at the 2002 Farm Show Junior Livestock Sale of Champions.

The scholarship committee awarded $2,000 scholarships to nine youth who are pursuing a post-secondary education. Winners were selected based on scholastic achievement, 4-H or FFA involvement, school activities, and a history of involvement in the livestock events at the Farm Show.

Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes Jr. assisted in the presentation of the awards. The first fund established after the 1993 Farm Show Sale of Champions supplied the initial scholarship money. A portion of the proceeds from each year's sale is donated to the fund.

The nonprofit Farm Show Scholarship Foundation oversees the fund, administering contributions and distributing scholarships. Including this year's allocation, $187,500 has been awarded to 130 individuals.

In addition to handling the scholarship program, the scholarship foundation has created an Ambassadors Club, a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization designed to increase scholarship funds for rural youth. This year's Farm Show Scholarship recipients include:

• Jesse David Brant, 20, son of David and Carol Brant of Rockwood, Somerset County.

A graduate of Rockwood Area High School, Brant has exhibited market steers and lambs at past Farm Shows. He was active in several 4-H clubs and served as president of his local FFA chapter.

Brant attends Penn State University's Mont Alto campus. Upon graduation, the agricultural extension and education major plans to work as an agriculture teacher or extension agent.

"I plan on influencing society when I am done with college through my job. I liked 4-H and FFA so much, I decided I wanted to give students the same opportunity I had by becoming either an ag teacher or an extension agent," Brant said.

• Lucinda Marie Bray, an 18-year-old graduate of Tulpehocken Area High School.

The daughter of Marcia and John Bray Jr. of Richland, Berks County, she attends Penn State University Park campus, pursuing a degree in landscape architecture. She hopes to gain employment at a design-build firm patterning residential and community landscapes.

Bray, who has exhibited market swine at past Farm Shows, was active in the Western Berks 4-H Dairy Club and in her school FFA program. She has been a committed member of the dairy farming community, reigning as the 2000-2001 Berks County Dairy Princess, and served as a dairy ambassador for several years.

"Being a dairy farmer's daughter has taught me many important lessons, which I will use throughout life, while furthering my education and entering into the workforce," Bray said.

• Julie Ann Campbell, a 2000 graduate of State College Area High School and daughter of J. Roy and Lisa Campbell of Pennsylvania Furnace, Centre County.

A student at Penn State University's University Park Campus, she is studying business, with a possible emphasis in either management or marketing.

This 19-year-old has exhibited market steers and swine at the Farm Show for the past six years through her local 4-H program.

Of her agriculture experiences, Campbell said, "Farming has been the foundation of my learning and enrichment I would not choose any other place to learn the lessons of life, but with my family on the farm."

• Jordan Franklin Conner, a 19-year-old aspiring politician from Chambersburg, Franklin County.

A sophomore political science major at the University of Pittsburgh at Greenburg, he is the son of Jeffrey and Phoebe Conner. An active member of the Republican party, Conner was graduated from Cumberland Valley Christian School in June 2000.

Conner has served as an officer in several 4-H clubs and has exhibited market steers and swine at past Farm Shows.

"4-H has given me three main things: Integrity to do what is right regardless of the consequences, wisdom to help others, and respect for others," he said.

• Lindsay Carol Jones, 18, from East Berlin, York County.

This Dover Area High School graduate is the daughter of Carol and Richard Jones Jr.

She aspires to be a physical therapist and plans to major in either psychology, biology, or neuroscience at Middlebury College in Middlebury, Vt.

Jones was an active member of her local FFA chapter, serving as reporter. She was also a member of the York County 4-H swine and lamb clubs. Over the past seven years, Jones has been an active Farm Show participant, exhibiting market sheep and swine and participating in the showmanship and junior shepherd's contests.

"I am, and always will be, grateful that I have had the chance to be part of a (4-H) program that is based on the welfare of its members and has the ability to make each member mature to become a better person," Jones said.

• Kristen Bernadette Pfeifer, daughter of Edward and Bernadette Frenchik of Derry, Westmoreland County.

The 19-year-old graduated from Derry Area High School in 2000 after serving as FFA chapter treasurer and secretary. Her list of accomplishments includes receiving the prestigious American FFA degree and admission into the Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences.

In addition to her involvement in local activities, Pfeifer earned the distinguished title of Pennsylvania State FFA Secretary in 2000-2001.

Of her FFA involvement, Pfeifer said, "Through the FFA, I have learned the values of responsibility, leadership, teamwork, determination, and goal setting."

Pfeifer has exhibited market swine at past Farm Shows. An animal physiology student at Penn State's New Kensington Campus, she aspires to attend medical school and become a family physician.

• Susan Michelle Richardson, a 19-year-old from Fawn Grove, York County.

The daughter of Charles and T. Ruth Richardson, she served as president of the Kennard-Dale High School FFA chapter.

Richardson was also an active member of the 4-H dairy, swine, and lamb clubs, exhibiting market swine at previous Farm Shows.

An aspiring dairy herd manager, she is enrolled in a farm and industry short course at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

"The contests, shows, and activities that I have participated in have built new relationships and strengthened old. I have met so many influential people and have traveled to so many new places that I otherwise would not have had the opportunity," Richardson said.

• Briana Lee Shealer, 18, daughter of Paul and Sharon Shealer of Auburn, Schuylkill County.

Shealer attended Blue Mountain High School where she was a member of the volleyball, softball, and track teams. She was actively involved in Blue Mountain 4-H, serving as president, vice president, and secretary of her livestock club.

Shealer has exhibited market hogs at the Farm Show for eight years and has also had success showing dairy animals and market goats.

An animal science business management major at Penn State's Berks Campus, Shealer hopes to one day own and operate a ranch in the western U.S. or to gain employment at the USDA in Washington.

Shealer attributes much of her success to her 4-H involvement.

"I truly feel 4-H has prepared me for the real world and has given me the courage to face it head on. It has enabled me to strive for success as well as help others the way this program has helped me," she said.

• Rachel Sue Wolfe, a 19-year-old graduate of Brownsville Area High School and the daughter of E. Lucille and Charles Wolfe, Jr. of Grindstone, Fayette County.

An active 4- H member, Wolfe has exhibited market swine and lambs at previous Farm Shows.

This biology major at Penn State's Fayette campus hopes to one day become a pediatrician. Her 4-H involvement impacted her career decision, inspiring her to strive to work with youth.

"I am very proud of my accomplishments so far and hope to work closely with young people in the future, especially with the 4-H program. I hope I will have an impact on them the way leaders and agents have influenced me," Wolfe said.

Mark Chesnutt, Rep. Charles Stenholm To Highlight NFU Centennial Convention

AURORA, Colo. — Country music singer Mark Chesnutt will perform Saturday, March 2, at Point, Texas, as part of the National Farmers Union (NFU) 100th anniversary celebration. The business activities of the March 1-4 convention will be held at the Harvey Hotel in Irving, Texas.

"We are happy Mark Chesnutt will be with us to help celebrate this milestone in the organization's history," said NFU President Leland Swenson.

The convention will begin on Friday, March 1, with an address from Rep. Charles Stenholm, R-Texas, ranking member of the U.S. House Agriculture Committee. A welcome reception, hosted by the Texas Farmers Union, will follow Stenholm's address.

"We are honored that Representative Stenholm will be joining us in his home state as we celebrate Farmers Union's centennial anniversary," Swenson said.

Saturday's activities include a trip to Point, Texas, where the organization was founded in 1902. Numerous special activities are planned for the day, including an historic snapshot of the organization presented by the NFU Youth Advisory Council and an address by Bob Bergland, former U.S. secretary of agriculture.

Farmers Union will also present numerous awards recognizing members for their work in the organization over the year. Sunday evening activities include reunions and receptions for current and former co-op directors; Washington Campaigners and fly-in participants; NFU education directors, youth leaders, All-Staters and Torchbearers, and county, state and national officers.

In addition, NFU convention delegates will elect a president and vice president to lead the organization for the next two years and consider and adopt the 2002 NFU policy program.

As a general farm organization representing nearly 300,000 family farmers and ranchers nationwide, NFU serves its membership through educational opportunities, support for farmer-owned cooperatives and legislative representation.

2002 MAJAC Show Upcoming

New Holland Homebred Crossbred Tops Market Beef

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In her maiden voyage into the Farm Show market steer ring, 13-year-old Katie Nolt joined the big leagues.

The New Holland seventh grader of "Triple N Farms," which stands for her and her two Nolt siblings, and "Luke" first topped the Crossbred classes before moving on to be named overall grand champion of the market steer classes. Reserve champion was Justin Claycomb and "Trigger," who first came in reserve in the Crossbred classes.

Although the 1,330-pound steer may have danced around the ring much of the competition (even to the extent of getting loose after being spooked by the judge's champion-awarding slap), he put skeletal structure and functional movement together, according to the judge, and coupled that with showing a balance in muscle mass for his frame size.

"All these pieces have to come together and that's not an easy task," said Judge Tom Turner, Ohio State University.

The daughter of Eugene and Charlene Nolt, Katie is joined by a sister and brother who also exhibit cattle. The family has a 60-acre farm and cow-calf herd.

With five years of experience at showing cattle and three years spent exhibiting cattle at the Farm Show, Katie is not a stranger to Harrisburg. However this is her first year showing a steer at the Farm Show.

The daily walkings and groomings of the past few weeks have now paid off for Katie, with the $16,000 sale of Luke.

She has officially begun her college fund, as she said her father will probably tell her to put the money aside for further education — although Katie was toying with the thought of using the money for another steer.

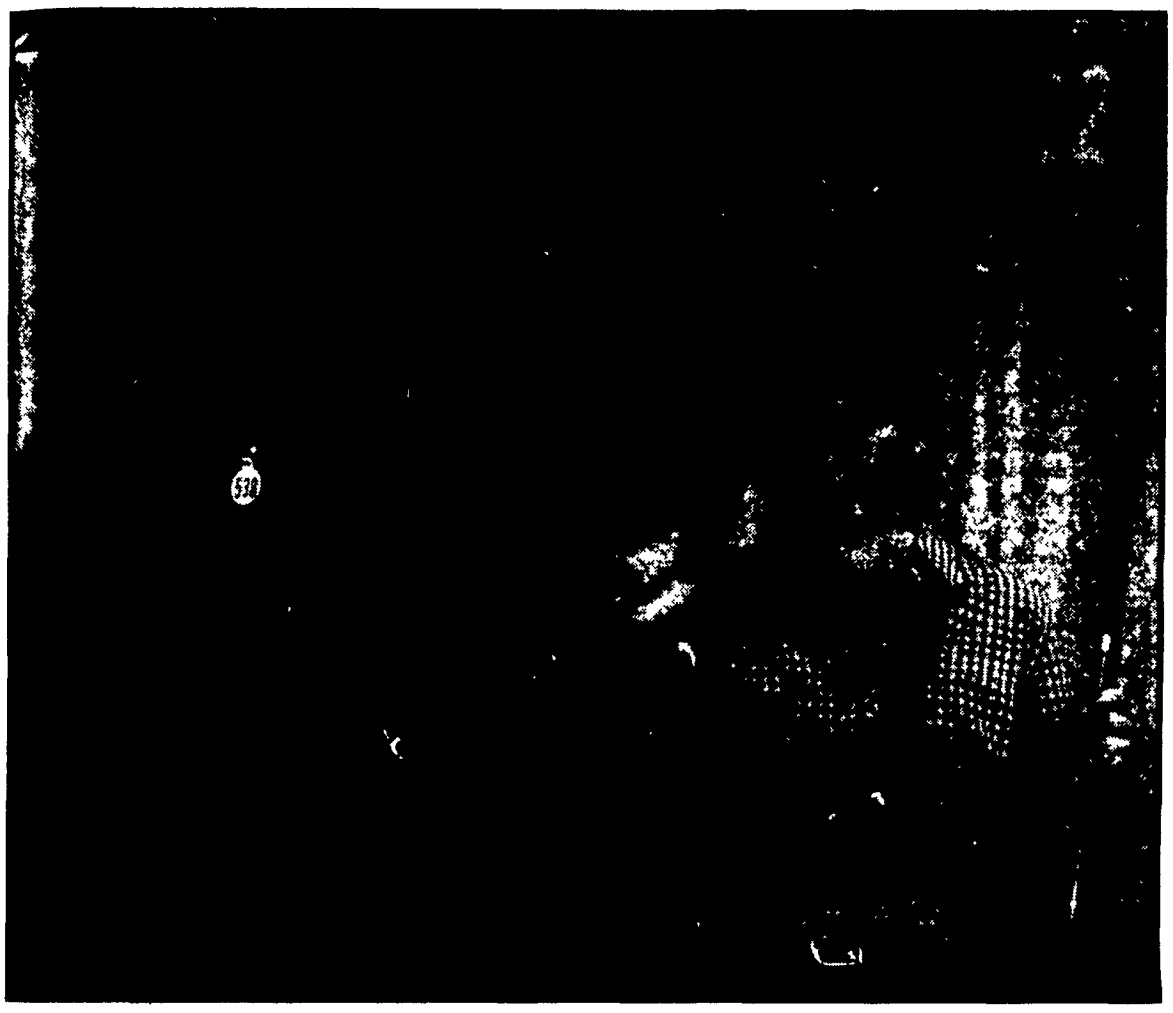
Reserve champion of the market beef classes went to Justin Claycomb, Osterburg, Bedford County. A senior at Chestnut Ridge High School, Justin won grand champion of the crossbreds three years ago and reserve two years ago.

This is his tenth Farm Show. Justin is from Claycomb Farm, a 1,500-acre farm which hosts a commercial cow/calf herd.

Eighteen-month old Trigger, weighing in at 1,305 pounds, is from Ohio.

"When the dust settles, what it's all about is young people developing skills and learning about beef production. I admire those who help them be successful," said Turner.

Also during the event John Miller, Bethlehem, was awarded the Ira Coble Memorial Award. Miller has served as a 4-H livestock club leader for 18 years and is planning to continue his work as a leader.



Overall grand champion placing went to Katie Nolt and 1,330-pound "Luke," New Holland. The pair first won the Crossbred market steer class.

Class Winners

Topping the Angus classes was Kim Long and "Mastermind," a steer that was correct in balance in symmetry, said judge Turner. This year marked the fifth Farm Show season for Long, 13, from Airville. She is from Long View Acres, a 16-acre, 25-head Angus operation.

Also new to the steer show ring is Tiffany Dean, Strasburg, who took home reserve champion Angus. Tiffany has enjoyed exhibiting cattle and already has a Crossbred steer for next year, according to her father, Gary. Tiffany also had a second placing with her lamb and a fourth placing with her hog at the Farm Show.

Donald Sunday, Dover, took home champion Hereford placing. Sunday is from a 16-acre, 7-head operation. A six-year veteran of the Farm Show, Donald brought three head of cattle to the Farm Show. Last year he had the champion Hereford and in 1996 the reserve champion Hereford. This year's winner came from Virginia.

Caitlin Fairbairn, 13, won reserve champion Hereford honors. Caitlin is from Lisnageer Farm, Coatesville, a 300-acre farm with 70 head of registered Angus brood cows. She is the daughter of Bill and Cheryl Fairbairn.

Although she has experience with the Angus breed, she is drawn to the "red and whites," according to her father, and decided to try her hand showing Herefords at the Farm Show for the first time. She has also shown pigs for the last four years. Her brother, Ryan, also exhibited cattle at the Farm Show.

Drew Cowden, Hickory, Washington County, captured grand champion Shorthorn steer placing. Drew is from Hornhead Valley Farms, a 157-acre operation. The family has 35 head of purebred registered Shorthorns.

This is his fourth year at the Farm Show. The win, in fact, comes as a repeat of two years ago, when he also won champion Shorthorn steer honors. His steer comes from Illinois.

Joe Young, 17, McVeytown, Mifflin County, took a reserve champion Shorthorn placing during his second showing cattle at the Farm Show. He exhibited heifers last year and also brought hogs to the event this year.

First time was the charm for Jacob Martin, 9, and Dustin Flinchbaugh, 13, who in their inaugural year at the Farm Show walked away with grand and reserve champion honors in the other purebreds division.

Jacob, Berlin, Somerset County, won grand champion with his Limousin steer. The steer, "Andre," is also from Bedford County.

Reserve champion was Dustin Flinchbaugh, 13, York, and "Moe," of Flinchbaugh Farms.

York County Youth Tops In First Woodcarving Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Joe Kuhns, York County, was the top winner in the first annual Youth State Championship of Woodcarving Competition at the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show. Despite the small turnout of contestants, judge and co-chairman of the competition, Mike Reed, hopes this year's contest will spark new interest for next year.

This year, three youths entered a total of seven projects. The exhibits were divided into three divisions (K-fourth grade, fifth-eighth and ninth-12th), with nine categories in each division. The divisions consisted of abstract, animal, bird, caricature, farm animal, farm equipment, aquatic, miscellaneous, and relief carvings.

Judges scrutinized and critiqued each entry. Carvings were judged by overall appearance, crispness of the wood, and other qualities of the carving. First, second, and third prizes were awarded in each category.

First, second, and third place prizes in the ninth through 12th grade category went to Joe Kuhns of York County. His cottonwood bark Indian face carving took first place, while his wolf and chipmunk designs took second, and third places. Derrin Ranck of Chester County took first, second, and third places for his three-piece barnyard setting. Lastly, Corbin Davis of Franklin County took first place in the kindergarten through fourth grade category with the only soap carving of his age group.

According to Mike Reed, "carving is a dying art." He hopes that through events like the Farm Show and woodcarving workshops, carving may be rekindled by the youth of today.

Angus Association Releases Sire Evaluation Report

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The American Angus Association has released its Spring 2002 Sire Evaluation Report. The new data was posted to the Association's Web site, www.angus.org, on December 15, making the new expected progeny differences (EPD) accessible to the world.

This report includes 4,848 sires, and nearly 74 percent of those sires have posted national cattle evaluation or interim EPD for ultrasound body composition traits. Nineteen percent of those sires show positive EPD for both percent intramuscular fat (marbling) and percent retail product (lean yield).

"There is no doubt that sires with these data can improve our industry, provided genetic values for reproduction, growth and maternal value are acceptable," says John Crouch, Association interim executive vice president and director of performance programs.

"Many commercial producers rely on the information in this report to make critical breeding and selection decisions for their herd. It's an invaluable tool for the industry."

The Sire Evaluation Report is updated twice annually. Many will notice a change in the way the Report is distributed. In the past, the Sire Evaluation Report has been mailed to members and commercial producers who use Angus genetics. Due to increased use of technology and the use of the Internet, the Sire Evaluation Report will be mailed only to those who request it.

"As more and more producers realize the convenience of viewing and using the searchable functions of the Sire Evaluation Report on the Association's Web site, the printed version becomes of less value to them," Crouch says.

To request a copy of the Spring Sire Evaluation Report, contact Brenda Schafer at bschafer@angus.org or call her at the Association at (816) 383-5100.

Lancaster Farming Selects Ice Cream Freezer Winners

Lancaster Farming has selected its ice cream freezer contest winners!

Contests were conducted at both the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg and Keystone Farm Show in York this week. Each contestant had a chance to win an original old-fashioned White Mountain Ice Cream Freezer.

Winners are:

• Pennsylvania Farm Show: Richard C. Sterner, Chambersburg. Sterner has been a subscriber since December 1999.

• Keystone Farm Show: Sherman M. Grove, East Berlin. Grove has been a subscriber since at least June 1996.

Visitors to our booths at both shows had the chance to enter the drawing. Congratulations! Lancaster Farming thanks all those who entered. And it was nice seeing you again.

Council Seeks Consulting Services

HUGHESVILLE, Md. — The Tri-County Council for Southern Maryland is seeking consulting services to conduct a feasibility study and develop the concept of a "Everything Southern Maryland Market-place and Restaurant" that promotes tourism and showcases products grown and processed in southern Maryland.

The facility will have a kitchen for processing value-added products. The project is modeled after Tamarack, W.V., and two successful Amish markets in Annapolis and Westminster, Maryland. It is envisioned that this operation will capitalize on the strong interest in Chesapeake tourism and the diverse cultural heritage of the area.

The enterprise will also build on experiences learned from the existing business incubators established in the region. It expected that the study will take no longer than six months.

Those interested should inquire at the Tri-County Council for Southern Maryland, P.O. Box 745, Hughesville, MD, 20637. A full copy of the RFP will sent upon request by FAX, mail, or email. Proposals are due no later than January 16, 2002.

Maturing Orchardgrass On The Market

(10 - 14 Days Later Than Pennlate)

BARAULA's late heading will change the way farmers think about orchardgrass. Its late heading makes it superb for mixing with alfalfa. BARAULA has been proven to be later maturing than Satin orchardgrass.

- VERY late heading.
- Not as clumpy as Pennlate and other varieties.
- Does not head out much in second cutting, even if cut before heading in first cutting.
- Soft leaves
- Very leafy
- High yields

"I spent a little more to make sure I got something that worked."

Jim & Crystal Hoke with children Callie & Jimmy and their new 62 x 23 Slurrystore

"I went to see a few Slurrystore® Systems and was impressed by what I saw. When my wife Crystal and I talked about storage systems, she was concerned about the safety of our own and the neighborhood children, so we chose above-ground storage. I also might add that I was impressed with the quality of workmanship throughout the whole project."

Thanks and congratulations to the Jim Hoke family, Mt. Pleasant, Fayette Co., PA!

Judges Select Five Apple Pies From 64 Prize-Winning Entries

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Many winners of baking contests credit their mothers for teaching them how to make the perfect crust. But Terry Davidson, Leola, has a different perspective.

"My mother was a good cook, but she couldn't make pie crust, so she gave the job to me when I was five years old," Davidson said.

All those years in the kitchen have turned Davidson into a culinary expert. He does all the baking for his wife Lynn and two daughters Sarah, 8, and Emily, 10.

"I do the tasting and cleaning up," his wife said of her husband's kitchen experimentations.

Davidson's coworkers at Lancaster Labs are always eager to taste-test the results of his baking endeavors of which there were many in anticipation of Farm Show's Blue Ribbon Apple Pie Contest.

Davidson enjoys experimenting and creating new recipes. This was the first time he entered the state competition, which required him to place first in a local fair before qualifying for state competition. Davidson took first place in Allentown and York Fairs.

After several experimentations, Terry Davidson baked the fourth-place apple pie that his wife Lynn and daughters taste-tested for approval.

Of his entry, Davidson said, "I took a canning recipe, divided it and threw in a few other things."

One of the five judges said it was the brandy that clinched Davidson's fourth-placing out of 64 entries. The five judges first held a visual test of the pies, then scrutinized and tasted the pies, each choosing five finalists from their category. The pies were judged by overall appearance, the crust's color, flavor and texture, the "doneness" of the bottom crust, the consistency, the "doneness" and flavor of the filling, and the overall creativity of the entry.

Neither the first or second place winners were on hand when judges announced the selections. Erma Robertson, representing the Oley Fair of Bucks County, placed first.

Second place went to Sarah Hoch who represented the Reading Fair.

Third place went to Trudie Craley of the Lawrence County Fair. She won $70 for her prize-winning pie, which she described as an old-fashioned apple pie with caramel drizzled on the crumb topping.

"This was my first time in the winner's circle," Craley said. "Each year I use a different recipe because I won't feel right using the same recipe after winning at my local fair."

Trudie Craley, left, started the family winning streak last Saturday when she took third place in the Blue Ribbon Apple Pie Contest. Later in the day, her mom Connie Shuff won first place in the Greatest Cocoa Cake Contest. The two have been entering the contests for at least 10 years.

Janet Oberholtzer of the Ephrata Fair placed fifth.

Crunchy Caramel Apple Pie

Pie Crust:
1¼ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup shortening
4-5 tablespoons cold water

Mix together flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Slowly add water until all dough is moistened. Roll out and line 9-inch pie plate.

Filling:
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
6 cups apples; sliced thin

Mix together sugar, flour, salt and cinnamon. Gently toss apples until coated. Transfer to a pie plate.

Crumb Topping:
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup flour
½ cup quick cooking rolled oats
½ cup butter, softened

Mix together sugar, flour and oats. Cut in butter until it resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle over apple mixture. Bake at 375 degrees, 50-55 minutes. Remove from oven and top with one cup chopped pecans. Drizzle 1 cup caramel topping over pie. Cool on wire rack.

Sour Cream Apple Pie
Second place

Pie Crust:
3 cups flour

Chocolate Sweetens Farm Show Competition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Cheers and whistles pierced the air when Connie Shuff was named the winner of the Hershey's Cocoa Cake Contest during the Pennsylvania Farm Show competition last Saturday.

For the first time in the state contest's history, the winner was the unanimous choice by all five judges in the first round of judging.

Shuff attributed the win to the moist, black cake's inclusion of black raspberry filling with chambord.

"Experiment, experiment," Shuff said of the ability to develop a prize-winning recipe. She had been a previous year's second-place winner, and for 10 years has persevered for the top prize of a weekend for four at the Hershey Hotel.

Shuff's cake like all of the 60 entries needed to place first at a county fair before qualifying for entry in the state competition.

Second place for the Cocoa Cake Contest was returning champion Dolly Getz from Lancaster County. Getz also served as a judge in the same contest last year.

Third place went to Angela Hausch, from Chester County. Kim Shaffer, from Clearfield County placed fifth.

Here is Shuff's winning recipe.

Connie's Chocolate Raspberry Cake

3 cups and 6 tablespoons cake flour
2½ cups and 2 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup baking cocoa
1 cup oil
1½ cup buttermilk
3 eggs
1½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups hot coffee

Preheat oven to 350. Grease and flour three 9-inch round cake pans. Combine first six ingredients in large bowl of electric mixer. Mix well.

Combine oil, buttermilk, eggs, and vanilla. Add to dry mixture, and beat one minute. Add hot coffee slowly to above mixture, blend together.

Pour into prepared cake pans. Bake for 30 minutes at 350. Cool 10 minutes and remove from pans.

Cool completely before adding chambord and jelly between layers. Frost sides and top of cake. Decorate as desired.

Filling:
6 tablespoons chambord
8 ounces seedless black raspberry jelly

Pour chambord (2 tablespoons each layer) on top of each layer. Then spread 4 ounces jelly over top of two bottom layers.

Frosting:
1 cup butter
8 ounces cream cheese
1 cup baking cocoa
2 teaspoons vanilla
4 cups confectioners' sugar

Beat butter and cream cheese together. Add cocoa, vanilla, and confectioners' sugar.

Beat for 5 minutes until fluffy.

Yields 16 servings.

After cakes are judged, they are sliced and distributed to Farm Show visitors such as Keith and Melanie Martin of Elizabethtown with children Sarah, 4; Daniel, 2; and Hannah, 1.

Joyce Bupp

"Now there's a worthwhile invention."

That was my enthusiastic reaction to a recently-published news release noting the development of — joy, oh joy! — self-cleaning windows.

Well, at least they're reported to be self-cleaning on the outside. Which is the place where they're the hardest to wash, anyway, especially for those of us with upper floors possessing numerous windows.

Most of our upper-story windows, frankly, never see cleaning except for what gets done by rainstorms. (Remember rainstorms? You know, water falling from the sky?) (The few unreachable-from-the-ground windows, which I do cave in and clean with a ladder, are key ones to our main floor — like at the kitchen stove — and which we actually look out of multiple times daily. The upstairs and attic floor windows stay clean enough on their own to let light through, which is all that's really necessary.

My philosophy about windows is that any which can only be cleaned by rappelling down from the chimney can just stay dirty. And the first person to complain about them will be handed a spray bottle, cleaning rag, and climbing rope.

More detailed information about the self-cleaning windows notes that they are manufactured by a special process which causes the dirt to sheet off when it rains against the glass.

According to the news release, a coating of titanium oxide is applied to the glass during the window manufacturing process. Ultraviolet light chemically reacts with the coating to loosen dirt which collects and allows it to "sheet" off when a spray of water or rain hits the glass.

You could probably stand back from the windows with a hose, turn a stream of water on the glass and get the same end results. Bingo! Clean windows.

What a stunning breakthrough in one of those most dreaded household chores. It would also be an ideal solution to our couple-dozen dairy barn windows which are perpetually cleanliness-challenged by windblown bedding sawdust, scattered silage bits from feeding, hay dust, etcetera.

Perhaps we can look forward to someone figuring out how to expand this fascinating self-cleaning technology to some other thankless tidy-up tasks. Like self-cleaning shower walls, kitchen sinks, maybe even mirrors.

Or even dirty cars. In an effort to keep my car somewhat presentable, I run it periodically through a local car wash. During pleasant weather, the milkhouse pressure washer is even handier. And, except on rare occasions, my car, when not on the road, is kept parked in the garage, with the garage door closed.

No matter. That car is still perpetually dirty, thanks to the fact that the garage is located. Just feet away from the sawdust storage area where they remove a dusty skid-loader-full every day for bedding cows; and adjacent to the road, which is perpetually stirred with dust from feeding equipment passing by several times daily.

Add to that the cat tracks which appear across the hood and roof of the car on a regular basis, but most dependably right after it has been washed. A self-cleaning finish would absolutely be a boon against my perpetual frustration over dusty, cat-tracked "wheels."

Self-cleaning finishes on farm equipment would be equally welcomed — for similar reasons. Except that cat tracks aren't usually a problem on tractors, though an occasional squirrel is spotted sprinting through the machinery shed.

Even if the self-cleaning technology never moves beyond this particular application to window glass, it's sure to be eagerly adapted by new home builders and remodelers.

We predict it to be a welcomed breakthrough product from which both inventor and user can "clean up."

OSU Student Wins Dairy Goat Scholarship

SPINDALE, N.C. — The American Dairy Goat Association (ADGA) recently awarded a $1,000 scholarship to ADGA member, Amy E. Plummer of Columbus, Ohio, who is enrolled as a student at the Ohio State University College of Veterinary Medicine. Winners are determined by a panel of judges on the basis of leadership skills, academic ability, and interest in dairy goats.

The ADGA, a national registry organized in 1904, serves a membership of 13,000 and maintains records for six breeds of dairy goats, including Alpine, LaMancha, Nubian, Oberhasli, Saanen, and Toggenburg.

Farm Women Brave Nasty Weather To Laugh Together

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Icy roads and declining health did not hamper 223 members of the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women from gathering for the 83rd annual state convention conducted Monday at the Radisson Penn Harris Convention Center Ballroom, Harrisburg.

Catherine Schott, president, opened the meeting with the proclamation: "Today is the day to laugh."

Although still partially numbed by a recent mini-stroke, Schott said the stroke did not cause her to lose her speech. The talkative, jolly Schott interspersed doses of laughter during the business session mixed with entertainment.

Reports were given by all county societies represented. The reports told how thousands of dollars were raised and distributed to meet many community needs throughout the state, of educational events, and times of pure relaxation for the 2,303 members scattered across the state. Some of the novel ways of raising money were fining members for certain items carried in their purses, auctioning items that were made, baked or grown, and charging a fine to members who showed up dressed in the color red.

The aging membership wrestles with maintaining their outstanding monetary contributions to society while losing many members to death and illnesses. Although the organization gains several new members, it also loses annually about 70 members due to death and aging.

The theme "Helping Feed the Hungry in the New Millenium" received a boost from members who brought a variety of food items produced in their counties. The collection will be distributed to food banks and organizations for the needy.

Mary Jane Kiehl, Somerset County, remarked that topics of conversation have changed since the society was founded in 1914. "The founding members talked about curing ham and making the best lard, but we are still the same in striving to preserve the rural community and bloom bigger and better wherever we are planted," Kiehl said of the society that seeks to contribute to the power and influence of the farm home, the community, and to develop leadership and promote better living and working conditions in farm families throughout the state.

During the business session, Barbara Mock, Adams County, was elected secretary and Lorna King, Lancaster, and Jayanna Kopp Yeakle, Dauphin County, directors.

Schott's 8-year-old granddaughter, Maggie Progin, sang the National Anthem. Pa. Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes, Jr., saluted members for all the wonderful things they do and reminded them of their important role. Hayes said, "Pennsylvania starts with the farm and the farm family. We couldn't have either without all you wonderful ladies."

Entertainment included a men's quartet, Heart-N-Soul from Somerset County; Chuck Rhodes, ABC weather forecaster who talked about humor in the American culture; and Melba Emert, a Somerset County member who protrayed a humorous version of Home Alone during the turn of the 20th century.

Treasurer Sharon Engle holds the cut glass vase presented for her three years of service.

Arlene Witman said that the advisory board discusses items brought to their attention to keep the organization running smoothly.

State Farm Women Award Scholarships

Robert Musser

Emme Mellott

Lisa Nissley

GLEN ROCK (York Co.) — The Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women has announced its scholarship award recipients for 2001-2002.

"We had 12 very deserving applicants and were pleased to be able to award $1,000 scholarships to each of them," said Naomi Bupp, Glen Rock, who chairs the state organization's scholarship awards committee.

The Society of Farm Women scholarship awards are granted to eligible applicants who are children or grandchildren of members, and are pursuing either home/ family management or agriculture-related majors in advanced education programs.

Funding for the education program is two-part, according to Bupp, who says that 40 cents of each member's $3 annual dues goes to the scholarship program. Funds available for providing scholarship awards have gotten a significant boost since 1991, when the Society's popular fundraiser cookbook first came off the press. More than 23,000 of the unique cookbooks have been sold in the 10 years since. The cookbook project was begun by Bupp during her tenure as state president.

Make It Beef Using These Contest Entries

CORNED BEEF

25 pounds beef steak
1½ quart salt
⅛ pound baking soda
⅛ pound saltpeter (scant)
1 pound brown sugar
2 tablespoons liquid smoke

Make a brine of the last four ingredients using enough water to cover meat well. Put meat and salt alternately in a large container. Let stand overnight, then rinse off.

Salt roughly and pack into container again, pour brine over meat and let stand two weeks. It is ready to use.

Cut or slice as desired and can or freeze. Meat can be kept in the brine for three months if set in a cold place.

Beef is a favorite meat at our home and this gives it an extra-special flavor. Making sure the steak is covered with water while cooking keeps the meat deliciously moist.

We live on an 85-acre dairy farm in Kutztown along with our three sons, Clifford, 6; Bernell, 3; and Calvin, 10 months. With our herd of cows and future replacement heifers, we find plenty to do and much to be thankful for.

Have an enjoyable winter!

VEAL MARLENE

2 pounds boneless veal
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup boiling water
1 chicken bouillon cube
2 tablespoons instant onions
2 strips lemon peel
½ cup evaporated milk

Before cooking, cut the veal into one-inch cubes, trimming visible fat.

Melt the butter in a large non-stick skillet. Add the veal and brown it slowly. Sprinkle the flour, salt, and pepper over the veal, then add the bouillon cube, onion, lemon peel, and one cup of boiling water.

Cover the skillet and simmer the mixture for 30 to 45 minutes until the meat is tender. Remove the lemon peel and discard it.

Add the evaporated milk and continue to cook the mixture until the milk is heated through. Makes 8 servings.

My family likes this recipe because it is different from the usual fare and has a distinctive flavor. I always go back to this recipe through the years.

SHREDDED BARBECUED BEEF

1 boneless beef chuck roast (about four pounds)
2 tablespoons oil
2 large onions, chopped
1 cup ketchup
1 cup beef broth
⅔ cup chili sauce
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup packed brown sugar
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons molasses
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
12-16 hamburger buns

In large saucepan, saute onions in oil until tender. Add remaining ingredients; bring to a boil. Simmer 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour over roast. Cover and bake at 325 degrees for two hours.

Turn roast over and bake two more hours.

Remove roast, shred meat with a fork, and return to sauce. Serve on rolls.

My husband and I raise grassfed beef, lamb, and chicken. This is a recipe we enjoy for summer get-togethers. It's nice to serve to large groups.

HEAVENLY STEAK MEAL

2 cloves garlic, crushed
1¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
4 small or 2 large red potatoes, cut in quarters
2 carrots, peeled and cut into two-inch lengths

Place steaks in an 8x8x2½ casserole dish. Drizzle Worcestershire sauce on meat. Mix tomato juice, onion, garlic, and salt and pepper in a separate bowl. Pour on meat. Place potatoes and carrots on top. Cover. Bake at 325-350 degrees for 2-2½ hours.

This is a full meal for two. My husband and I love it, it's delicious and has lots of flavor. I created this dish for people who love good food!

SWISS STEAK IN FOIL

¼ cup flour
1 cup ketchup
2 medium-sized beef steaks
1 large onion, thinly sliced
salt to taste
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine flour and ketchup. Put ½ of mixture in center of big piece of aluminum foil. Put steak on top of ketchup and sprinkle with salt. Cover with onions and rest of ketchup and flour mixture.

Sprinkle with lemon juice. Fold foil to cover steak and seal securely.

Bake at 350 degrees for two hours or until done.

We love this recipe because generally steaks have a tendency to be more dry. This recipe results in a very moist, juicy, delicious steak!

BAKED BEEF PIE

5 tablespoons butter
½ cup onion (optional)
6 tablespoons flour
3 cups beef broth
3 cups bite-sized chunks of cooked beef
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup peas
1 cup cubed potatoes

Parboil vegetables. Saute onion in butter until soft. Add flour and stir until smooth. Add broth (water from cooking vegetables can be added to make three cups). Cook until slightly thickened. Arrange chunks of beef and vegetables in baking dish. Add gravy. Top with the following crust.

Flaky Butter Crust

1½ cups flour
6 tablespoons shortening
4 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
ice water

Combine flour and salt. Cut in shortening and butter. Add water, a little at a time, using only enough to hold particles together. Roll dough ¼-inch thick to fit baking dish. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes or until crust is brown. Serves 6.

Our favorite beef recipe is baked beef pie. I bake a large beef roast for one meal and use the broth and leftover meat for a beef pie a day or two later. We have four children, each with different likes and dislikes, but this is one dish we all love.

TANGY BARBECUE SANDWICHES

1 boneless chuck roast (three to four pounds)
3 cups chopped celery
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup ketchup
1 cup barbecue sauce
1 cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon garlic powder
14-18 hamburger rolls

In slow cooker, combine the last 12 ingredients and mix well. Add roast. Cover and cook on high for six to seven hours or until tender. Remove roast, cool. Shred meat with two forks and return to sauce. Heat through. Using a slotted spoon, fill each roll with about ½ cup of meat mixture.

This is a great recipe to use when you are away from the house all day. I just put everything in my crock pot and when I get home it is ready to serve. It is also a good recipe for family reunions or other summer outings since it can be easily transported in the crock pot.

OVEN BEEF STEW

1½ pounds cut up beef
4 potatoes
6 coarsely-chopped carrots
1 cup coarsely-chopped celery
1 teaspoon sugar
1 small onion (optional)
2 tablespoons minute tapioca
1 cup tomato juice
salt and pepper to taste

Stir all together and cover roaster with foil. Bake three hours at 300 degrees. Do not uncover until ready to serve.

You can use any cut of beef that you like — I use thick cut round steak.

I like to make this dish to take to my Sunday family reunions. It is easy to put together and takes care of itself in the oven while my family attends church and is ready to go for a noon time meal. You can increase whatever ingredients your family likes best. I usually add one or two more potatoes and a little water. This always turns out very well.

My family's favorite meal is roast beef, mashed potatoes, bread filling, gravy, peas, and corn. I like to roast my favorite cuts of beef, rump roast, lean chuck and bottom round, very slow in a 325 or 350-degree oven for three or more hours in a blue roast with about ¾ inch of water with salt and pepper to taste. I turn the roast one time per hours of cooking. Water helps steam the beef and soften to fork tender. water also creates a flavorful broth for gravy. My mother and grandmother taught me these tips as they both were wonderful cooks.

My family has been raising beef since 1985. We have a small registered Angus beef herd on our farm in southern York County. We began raising beef cattle as a result of our oldest son's desire to join the county 4-H club at age eight. We started raising steers each year, but that soon grew into the purchase of heifers and then cows. Our primary breed has been Angus, but we have raised several steers of the Hereford, Charolais, Simmental, and crossbreeds.

Our three children have all participated in the York County 4-H Beef program. Jason, 25, and Philip, 21, have graduated from the program and now manage our small Angus herd. Our daughter, Beth, 17, has served as president of her beef club for 2001. She plans to continue with 4-H. Our family wholeheartedly promotes the use of lean beef as an outstanding food source that most can include in their diet!

Involve Children In Cooking Projects

Many of us have our children (or grandchildren) help us in the kitchen during the holiday season. During the rush of our everyday lives, we may not involve them in food projects throughout the year, but I recommend it.

Learning early in life can show them that cooking can be fun and enjoyable. It will also provide them with a lifeskill that they will need when they are out on their own.

There are many things to keep in mind to make your project with your child a success. First, plan projects in the kitchen that are at the child's level of development. Two-year-olds are capable of doing motions that require big arm muscles such as scrubbing, tearing, breaking, snapping, and dipping. Three year-olds are learning to use their hands more and can wrap, pour, mix, shake and spread. By age four, children are beginning to use small muscles and thus are able to do things with their fingers such as peel, roll, mash and crack eggs. Five-year-olds are learning fine motor coordination and can measure, cut and beat with an egg beater. As the child gets older many more skills can be developed.

Plan cooking activities that fit within your menu for the day. You may find your picky eater will eat better when they help prepare the food. Keep in mind that you can teach basic nutrition while you are teaching them to prepare food such as saying, "This is a vegetable and we should eat at least five fruits and vegetables a day."

Model safe food handling and good safety practices. Supervise and provide guidance to your child as they assist you in the kitchen but give them freedom to do the project themselves. If for example, the pieces of lettuce are larger than you would normally tear them, it will be okay. Lastly, teach them to cleanup. Cleanup activities should be age appropriate and you will again need to provide supervision.

There are many ways to teach your child about food as well as teaching them about food preparation. Some examples would be:

- Have a tasting party. Let children pick foods to taste based on the shape or color of the food.
- Help children compare the taste of raw and cooked fruits and vegetables.
- Have children break, snap, tear or chew food and listen to the sounds.
- Have children close their eyes and guess what made the sound — biting an apple, pouring milk, popcorn popping.
- Have the children reach into a "mystery bag" to feel foods of different sizes, shapes, and textures.
- Ask children to identify foods by their smell.
- Have children plant a seed and watch it grow.
- Read a book about food.
- Set up a grocery store and have the children shop.
- Travel to a farm, a supermarket, a restaurant.
- Use fruits and vegetables to teach counting, colors, etc.

A child is learning many things during these activities. For example creativity, colors, math skills, reading skills, science, etc. As you wind down your holiday season why not plan some food related activities to do with your child over the coming weeks.

The Expanded Foods and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) teaches food preparation skills, budgeting food dollars, food safety and nutrition to economically challenged families. Trained nutrition education advisors (NEA) teach a series of lessons in a group or individual setting to parents with young children. They help parents learn how to prepare more nutritious meals for their children and how to involve the children in the preparation process. If you think you or someone you know would qualify for the program, contact your local Cooperative Extension Office to see if EFNEP is available in your area.

ANSWER — Jewelene Fuller, Hanover, wanted a recipe to make cooked fudge. Thanks to Evelyn Noblit for sending her recipe. She writes that she makes 40-60 pounds as Christmas gifts and has sent it as far away as California, Florida, and Arizona. When her grandson was in the service, she sent it to Japan.

Fudge

4 cups granulated sugar
¼ pound margarine
1 tall can canned milk

In heavy, large saucepan, cook on high six minutes, stirring constantly, starting at a hard boil that can't be stirred down. Remove from heat. Add:

7 ounces marshmallow cream
12-ounce bag chocolate chips
1-2 large spoonfuls peanut butter or as much as desired

Stir mixture until completely smooth. Pour into greased 9x13-inch pan and cool.

Chocolate Fudge

2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons corn syrup
¾ cup milk
2 squares chocolate
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped nuts

Cook together sugar, syrup, milk, and chocolate until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water (236-degrees).

Remove from heat and add butter. Cool until you can hold your hand on the bottom of the pan (112 degrees).

Add vanilla and nuts and beat until creamy. Pour into buttered 4x8-inch pan. Mark into squares and cool.

ANSWER — Kenneth Jones asked what constitutes pork pudding. Thanks to Sanford Landis, New Providence, for writing that pork pudding is a product of home butchering using whatever is left of the hog such as meat scraps, pigs feet, liver, heart, kidneys, hide, lard and bone pieces cooked together in a big iron kettle. Remove bone. Save broth. Grind meat. Recook in big iron kettle continually stirring with a long-handled pudding stirrer for about 30 minutes. Traditionally poured into gallon crock and stored in basement over winter to be eaten with fried potatoes for a real feast or used to make scrapple.

"If you never stirred a kettle of pudding, you missed a part of life," Landis writes. Season with salt and pepper. Can substitute pork with ground turkey and broth.

Fiber Is Unabsorbed Carb

WOOSTER, Ohio — One website states that the body absorbs all carbohydrates within five minutes. Another site claimed that fiber isn't absorbed at all. Which is right?

First, some background. Fiber is mainly a collection of complex carbohydrates, the basis of which is the glucose molecule.

Glucose molecules hook up with other types of molecules, such as fructose, and can be consumed in the form of sugar, starch or fiber.

However, molecules that form fiber are strung together differently than those that form starch or sugar. Because of that different configuration, fiber is not digested or used by the body for energy. We simply don't have the enzymes necessary to break down and absorb fiber-type carbohydrates.

That's why high-fiber foods tend to fill you up without adding calories to your diet. High-fiber foods add volume, and usually lots of fluid and a greater proportion of vitamins and minerals, than low- or no-fiber foods.

Even though fiber is a type of carbohydrate, people who "count carbs" usually don't include fiber. Fiber is included in the overall carbohydrate content listed on food labels, but you can easily tell how much of those carbohydrates are fiber because fiber is listed as a sub-category directly beneath the carbohydrate listing.

One more thing: Both sugars and starches can take longer than five minutes to be absorbed by the body. Starch may get converted to the smaller glucose units almost that quickly — just by chewing a cracker, for example, your saliva helps break down starches to sugars. But carbohydrates also contain other sugars (such as fructose and galactose) that are absorbed and eventually metabolized to glucose, and that takes longer than five minutes. It might be done in three hours.

Health experts recommend consuming 20 to 30 grams of fiber a day. High-fiber foods include beans, whole grains, fruits, vegetables, nuts and seeds.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist for Berks Co.

Like many Americans, you may have to lose weight this year.

Although joining a weight lost program or a health spa may be very beneficial and effective it can also be very costly. You can still achieve your New Year's resolution and save money by following these low-cost "food for thought" ideas and practical tips that can help you manage your weight.

It is hard to break old habits because food is woven into the fabric of everyday socializing. There's hardly a celebration where food is not part of the festivities like the Thanksgiving feast, birthday cake, Christmas dinner, and the list goes on and on.

Reaching for food is often our first response to sadness, boredom, loneliness, or frustration. It is no wonder that dieting can be so difficult. Too often, dieters are looking for that quick fix.

The problem with most diets is that you may lose weight for a short time, but you usually return to the same or higher weight. You can avoid this rebound or "yo-yo" effect if you make a long-term commitment to improving the way you eat. There is no quick and easy solution to weight loss.

The key to successful weight management is permanent, healthy change in eating habits and regular exercise. Be realistic about your weight loss. Do not expect to lose 40 pounds in a week. Set goals in terms of years, instead of weeks or days.

Don't get discouraged if you don't take off the weight right away. By concentrating on improving your diet and exercise activity, you will lose weight, feel better and improve your health.

Don't procrastinate. Start improving your diet and exercising today. Every day counts. Follow these practical tips:

- Stay away from fad diets that sound too good to be true.
- Eat three or four small, well-balanced meals a day instead of one or two large ones.
- Make aerobic exercise, such as walking, a regular part of your routine.
- Eat more vegetables and fruits.
- Park a 5-minute walking distance from work.
- Take a break with a bath, massage, stretch or walk instead of reaching for food when you are feeling bored or upset.
- Take the stairs instead of elevators or escalators.
- Include a friend in your weight management plans for mutual support and encouragement.
- Drink juice or water instead of soft drinks.
- Reward yourself when you reach a goal (but not with food or drink). Radical changes are hard to make. Instead, try to begin to modify your intake by eating smaller portions and reducing fat and sugar in your diet.

If you like sweets, you can still enjoy them by making low-fat substitutions in your recipes like this one:

LOW-FAT BERRY CHEESECAKE

¼ cup sugar
2 8-oz packages nonfat cream cheese
1 tablespoon flour
3 egg whites
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
½ cup graham cracker crumbs
½ teaspoon lemon peel
2 cups berries or cherries
½ cup sour cream, nonfat

Blend first five ingredients with electric mixer. Blend in sour cream and egg whites. Spray 9-inch pie pan with nonfat cooking spray; sprinkle with crumbs. Pour in cheese mixture and bake at 325 F for 40 minutes.

Cool, then refrigerate for three hours. Top with berries. Yield: 8 servings. Calories 180, fat 0.8 g.

Pour hot water over the soda then add the syrups and the egg. Mix in the crumb mixture until just moistened. Pour into a 9-inch deep dish pie shell.

Topping:

Mix 1 teaspoon cinnamon with the reserved crumbs. Mix in the nuts. Sprinkle these crumbs over the pie. Place in a 415-degree oven for 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to 350 degrees and continue baking for 25 minutes till crust is browned and the filling is set.

Kids Korner

Spencer Hullmann, 12, shows a whiptail scorpion to Farm Show visitors. He and his mom Wendy helped with the display of the York County 4-H Etymology Club. Spencer said the scorpion is his favorite insect. It has no poisonous sting but sprays a solution that smells like vinegar that causes its enemies to flee.

Wagon rides are a favorite form of transportation at the Farm Show Complex. Sharon, 8; Katrina, 3; and Michael, 2, are the children of beef farmers Daniel and Anna Smucker.

For the first time, Ernest and Brenda Hahn, Bowmansville, brought their children to the Farm Show. Sherie, 5; Crandall, 4; and Allison, 2, liked the animals so much, they're sure they'll come back again.

Farm Show Fun

Miranda, 5, is proud her mother won second place in the chocolate cake competition.

At the Safe Kids booth, children could be fitted with helmets. A helmet, bike lock, and knee and elbow pads could be purchased for $8.

The children of Gregory and Kathy Picard of Chambersburg, Abigail, 6, and Isaiah, 8, dress in appropriate garb to watch the rodeo.

Jeremy, 9, and Ezra, 5, children of Pete and Portia Amstutz, Honey Brook, collapse on a haybale after lots of trudging through the Farm Show Complex.

Emily Hausch, 6, sips a frozen drink while waiting with her parents and grandparents during cake judging. The wait was worth it. Emily's mom Angela Hausch placed third. Last year she was the cheese carving champion. Of Angela's varied achievements, her father-in-law said, "I entered her in bull riding for next year."

Bugs attracted many kids such as Chaste and George Shubert.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Old advertising cards tell us what businesses were at a certain address long ago. My mother collected some cards from Lancaster, in the early 1900s. Some were from general stores and others were speciality shops. Dentists and druggists also handed out cards. One was from a man running for Congress.

The one side of the card often had beautiful flowers or birds. Some advertised sewing machines or a special kind of thread. Others pictured bicycles and binders. Even boots, shoes, and gloves had their own cards with the address of the businessman who sold them.

People collect many different things and in time they might become valuable. If you don't have much room to store things then paper items or small ornaments could be the answer to your desire to collect. Glass bottles or tiny salts are considered to be collectibles.

Of course, some folks go to antique sales and buy furniture. Maybe they like dry sinks or maybe Grandfather clocks. It takes time to find a particular item and then one must have room to display it.

We often hear stories of someone finding a tall cupboard or wardrobe in an old shed or barn. When something new is bought, the old piece is merely stored rather than sold. My parents had an attic that held items from their parent's time. A candlebox, a spool cabinet, and a small trunk. Naturally, there were also other things that appear to be junk unless you collect glass bottles, old shoes, and old hats. Everyone has their own interests.

Gourmet Cooking Scents Fill Family Living Section At Farm Show Complex

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Free samples and cooking demonstrations took place as the Pennsylvania College of Technology and television chef Paul Mach filled the air with aromas at the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Scents of beef, pork, chicken, veal and trout were among the delicacies prepared before the eyes of quite a crowd early this afternoon.

The first exhibit, given by Paul Mach of "You're the Chef" (as seen on cable television) and the Pennsylvania College of Technology, held the crowd's attention with the live preparation of beef and peppers stuffed with spinach and goat cheese. This exhibit was sponsored in part by Pennsylvania College of Technology, the Pennsylvania Beef Council, and by "You're the Chef." A recipe for this dish may be found below.

At the second exhibit, some more members of the Pennsylvania College of Technology demonstrated how to prepare smoked trout. This exhibit was sponsored in part by the Pennsylvania College of Technology, Cedar Springs Hatchery, Chef Dick Fields, and Jim Tanalonis. In the end, they came up with a trout cracker dip and appetizer.

The next two big events were the Old Familiar Foods exhibit and the Molasses Rubbed Pork Loin exhibit. The Old Familiar Foods chef prepared a chicken and braised veal roast with root vegetables. This event was televised. A recipe for the pork loin may be found below. Both of these exhibits were sponsored by the Pennsylvania College of Technology, the Pennsylvania Beef Council and the Pennsylvania Pork Council.

MOLASSES RUBBED PORK LOIN

For the "Rub":

4 Tbls. black peppercorns-crushed
2 tsp. coriander seeds-crushed
3 Tbls. garlic clove-minced
2 Tbls. orange zest
½ cup molasses-dark
6 Tbls. brown sugar

Stir together the peppercorns, coriander, minced garlic and orange zest. In another bowl combine the molasses and brown sugar.

For the Pork Loin:

3 lbs. boneless pork loin

Score fat on the pork loin. Place pork on a large piece of aluminum foil or a baking sheet. Spread molasses mixture generously over the entire loin. Sprinkle the spice mixture over the pork loin and rub-in the mixtures until well covered. Wrap the pork loin tightly in plastic wrap and refrigerate up to 36 hours.

Smoking & Cooking steps:

Preheat smoker. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place pork loin on smoker rack away from direct heat and allow to smoke for 10 minutes-maximum. Remove pork loin and immediately place on a roasting rack and in a roasting pan, then into the oven. Roast until internal temperature of pork is 155 degrees, about 40 to 50 minutes. Let pork rest after removing from oven before carving. The pork will have a dark brown exterior surface.

Great served with a fruit chutney.

SUPER STUFFED TENDERLOIN

4 lbs. beef tenderloin, trimmed of fat, and silver skin butterflied evenly
3 egg whites, beaten lightly
Salt as needed
Ground black pepper as needed
2 tsp. fresh rosemary, chopped
2 tsp. fresh marjoram, chopped
1 bag baby spinach, blanched and shocked and well drained
1 cup roasted peppers
½ lb. fine goat cheese, Montrachet style preferred

Lay the butter-flied beef on a flat work surface. Brush with egg white and season with the first herbs and spices. Lay down the spinach in a thin layer over ⅔ of the beef. Top the spinach with an even amount of red peppers, and then place the goat cheese in a straight line down the edge of the beef on top of the peppers and spinach. Brush the cheese and vegetables with egg white. Roll up the beef, tucking the meat tightly around the cheese and vegetables. Tie the beef with cotton butcher's twine or secure with toothpicks.

Season the outside of the beef with the remaining herbs and spices. Sear the beef in hot oil in a large saute or frying pan over high heat. Place the seared beef on a roasting rack on a shallow sided pan. Roast at 325 degrees for about 1½ hours, or until a meat thermometer inserted into the center of the roast reads 140 degrees.

Allow the meat to rest on the stovetop for about 20 minutes before removing the butchers twine and serving in slices.

Scrumptious Apple Pie
Fourth Place

Filling (prepare the day ahead):
1½ cups sugar
⅓ cup cornstarch
¼-1 teaspoon cinnamon
Pinch nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt

In saucepan, blend above ingredients. Stir in 3⅓ cups water and cook and stir until thick and bubbly. Remove from heat. Add:
2 tablespoon lemon juice
2 drops yellow food coloring
2 tablespoon brandy
½ teaspoon orange zest
½ teaspoon almond extract

Let cool while you peel the apples. Prepare a large mixing bowl filled with cold water and 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Core and peel 3 pounds of Ginger Gold apples (Stayman/Winesap apples were used for the Farm Show competition), and place into mixing bowl until you are ready to slice the apples.

Slice apples into 24ths and stir into above sauce. Divide evenly into two containers and refrigerate overnight. This will be enough filling for two pies.

When ready to prepare and bake pies, microwave the filling for 4-8 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes. Let cool as you prepare the pie crust.

Pie Crust (for 1 double-crust pie):
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon apple pie spice

Dot top with 2⅓ tablespoons butter. Roll out remaining crust into a rectangle approximately 8 inches wide and cut into 12 equal lengths. Apply in a lattice fashion. Crimp edges.

Beat 1 whole egg and brush onto crust. Sprinkle with sugar topping.

Sugar Topping: Mix together 1 tablespoon brown sugar with 1 tablespoon sanding sugar (coarse sugar found in bulk food sections of grocery stores) and 1 heaping tablespoon of slivered almonds.

Cover edges. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 and loosely cover with a sheet of foil. Bake an additional 30 to 40 minutes.

¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons flour
5 or 6 baking apples, peeled and sliced

Best In The State Cookies, Bars, Brownies

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Eleven-year-old Tyler Barge, Elizabethtown, wasn't present when judges selected his cookie bars as the best in the state. But he will be eligible to take a group of four to the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, Hershey, for a two-night stay.

Five judges determined Tyler's bars were best out of 57 entries in overall appearance, flavor, and texture during competition at the Pennsylvania Farm Show last Saturday.

Taking second place in the competition limited to youth was Hallie Dilley, Meadville, Crawford County. Hallie's mother Debbie said that her daughter bakes everything and has won several times at the local level.

In her first try, third place went to Heather Douthitt, New Brighton, Beaver County. The daughter of Mike and Hedy Bflug said that she baked three different varieties of bars before deciding "fudgey-coconut" tasted best.

All contestants needed to be a between the ages of 8-18. Entries needed to place first at a county fair before qualifying for state entry.

Here is Tyler's recipe for the first-place win.

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gracefully, keenly, under pressure of a one-hour deadline, Kathy Griffith, Quarryville, meticulously carved "Freedom, Liberty, and the Scales of Justice" during the 4th annual Creative Cheese Carving Contest Sunday at Farm Show.

Using a five-pound block of cheddar, and deftly making use of paring knives and other carving tools, Griffith won for the first time in competition to carve cheese.

"I'm used to wood and clay carving," she said. Griffith noted she began using her skills to carve as early as 1985.

Mahoning Cheese Company, Smicksburg, provided the cheese for contestants. Judges were Diane Povis, Pennsylvania Chamber of Business and Industry; Jim Barnett; and Rebecca Mowrer, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

Judging was based on relevance to theme, creativity, and visual appeal.

Griffith won a cash prize of $150, a "cheese head" hat, and a gourmet cheese basket. Second place went to Edward Auto of Cumberland County for his replica of Uncle Sam. He received a $100 cash prize and a gourmet cheese basket. Michael Reed, Dauphin, won third, with a depiction of an eagle with a crest, and picked up a $50 cash prize and a cheese basket.

Among the other cheese creations were a liberty bell, a fire helmet, and the head of the Statue of Liberty.

Griffith noted the theme of patriotism. The first thing she thought about was "the flag and the eagle, symbols of strength of our country," she said.

She selected these items because they held special meaning for her.

Griffith said that many, many people in her family have served in the armed services.

Also, the award is special to her because she was diagnosed with cancer about five years ago, and this was her first healthy year "in quite some time," she said.

The annual contest is sponsored by the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

"We wanted to do a patriotic twist to this year's event," said Deanna Rose, communications specialist with the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association and coordinator of the contest. "With the contest in its fourth year, the interest and popularity of American-made cheese is growing — and this contest is a fun way to show the versatility of cheese."

Butter Sculpture A 'Whey' To Honor Heroes

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Among the livestock and numerous exhibits of the Farm Show stands a sculpture that acknowledges the Sept. 11 tragedy and honors those who have become heroes to America.

A firefighter, policeman, and military man pass off the flag in the sculpture unveiled at Farm Show Complex.

The sculpture, made from 800 pounds of butter, took creator Ed Shank, Harrisburg, approximately 50 hours to create. He began the process in early December.

Although sculpture ideas had already been discussed, "after Sept. 11 the idea changed," said Shank. A cartoon by a man in the Air Force served as inspiration for the final sculpture.

Sam Hayes, secretary of agriculture, believes the sculpture is a fitting tie between America's military strength and agriculture. "We don't just defend ourselves with tanks and airplanes," said Hayes. "We are strong as a nation because of our tremendously wonderful agriculture."

Becky Mowrer, Pennsylvania dairy princess, informed the audience about the contributions of the dairy industry to America's economy also during the unveiling ceremony. A butter sculpture has appeared at the Farm Show for more than 11 years.

A Work In Progress

The sculpture's framework is welded together then moved to the lobby of the complex for Shank to complete his work. While the butter is kept in a 37-degree environment, Shank does not work in those chilly temperatures during the entire process. "I turn it off and work for a while. When the butter starts melting, I turn it back on," he said.

One of the challenges of working with butter is the consistency, which is variable, and even five degrees makes a difference, according to Shank.

Shank has been called to active duty as a public affairs officer for the 193rd Special Operations Wing of the Pennsylvania Air National Guard. He was able to use his own uniform as a model for the sculpture.

"I knew right away the first thing I had to do was research the uniforms," he said. He called his brother, a volunteer fireman, and had his mother take pictures, "so he's the model for my fireman." Shank also has a friend who is a Harrisburg city policeman who also served as a model for the sculpture.

Shank, who studied sculpting at Shippensburg University, has done the butter sculpture for seven years. He is a sculptor working in the Harrisburg area and works on bronze and marble mediums, as "only once a year I do butter," he said.

The butter was donated by the Land O'Lakes plant in Carlisle.

Butter sculpture creator Ed Shank is joined by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Rebecca Mowrer at the butter sculpture.

SAVORY SWEET ROAST

3-4 pound blade roast
1 onion
1 can mushroom soup
½ cup water
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Brown meat on both sides in skillet. Add onions. Blend together remaining ingredients. Pour over meat. Cover and simmer 2½-3 hours or until tender.

This juice is good for gravy or to cook noodles in after roast is done. This recipe can also be cooked in the crockpot on low for 8-9 hours.

My husband and I live on a dairy farm with our eight sons, ages 5-21 years. We also have a fabric store.

Not only does this recipe made a tasty meat, it's also very convenient to put in the crockpot.

TOMATO GLAZED BEEF ROAST

Roast rub:
1 teaspoon salt
1 garlic clove, minced
½ teaspoon dried thyme
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 rolled boneless beef (round) roast (about 5 pounds)
Enough water or wine if you prefer to make a paste
Glaze:
¼ cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 cup tomato or V-8 juice
⅓ cup orange or pineapple juice (use pineapple for sweeter flavor)
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon water

Combine the rub ingredients together and make a paste. Rub over entire roast. Place roast with fatty side up in a shallow roasting pan, or on a roasting rack. Bake at 350 degrees for two hours.

Meanwhile in a saucepan, combine brown sugar and cornstarch. Stir in the remaining glaze ingredients until smooth, with a wire whisk. Bring to a boil for about 2 minutes, until the glaze is slightly thickened. Brush some of this over the roast (at the 2 hour point) and continue baking for another hour, or longer, until a meat thermometer reads the desired doneness. Medium rare — 145 degrees; medium — 160 degrees; well-done — 170 degrees. Brush the roast occasionally with the glaze.

Let stand 10-15 minutes before slicing; serve with remaining glaze. Serves 12-15 people depending on portions.

I slice the beef thin with an electric knife. My family loves this beef recipe because the leftovers make such good sandwiches. I also tried the recipe with a pork roast substituting pineapple juice and water for tomato juice and it is excellent.

CITRUS SIMMERED STEAK

1¼-2 pounds round steak, cut into 1½-inch pieces
½ cup fresh mushroom pieces
½ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground thyme
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 lemons, sliced thin

In a large frying pan, brown meat in 1 tablespoon oil on both sides. Add mushrooms, onion, catsup, lemon juice, soy sauce, lemon peel, salt, and thyme. Simmer, covered, 2 to 2½ hours or until meat is tender.

Combine water, sugar, and cornstarch, stir to blend. Add cornstarch mixture and sliced lemons to meat mixture, stir to blend. Continue to simmer until sauce thickens.

You may use oranges and orange peel in place of lemons.

BEST BEEF ROAST

4-5 pounds beef roast
1 can cream of mushroom soup
¼ soup can water
¼ cup light brown sugar
¼ cup white vinegar
1 medium onion, chopped
1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper as desired

Place roast in a 2½-3-quart baking dish. Mix together all ingredients and pour over roast. Cover and bake at 325 degrees for 3-4 hours. Slice and serve with the sauce.

I clipped this recipe a number of years ago, but just got around to trying it this past summer. The roast is excellent. The meat is fork tender and very moist, a welcome change from the beef roast with potatoes, carrots, and onions, although that is still probably my husband's favorite. We always have our own fattened beef in the freezer and it really doesn't need a flavor enhancer.

I never miss reading the B section of your paper.

HOT BEEF SANDWICHES

3-4 pounds chuck roast
16-ounce jar whole dill pickles
15 ounce can tomato sauce
2 garlic cloves, minced
¼ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
Hamburger buns

In a crock pot, combine pickles with juice, tomato sauce, garlic, brown sugar, vinegar, cinnamon, and cloves. Stir until mixed. Cut roast in half. Place in crock pot and turn to coat both sides with sauce. Cover and cook on low for 8-9 hours or until beef is tender. Remove roast and whole pickles. Shred meat when it is cool enough to handle. Return to sauce and heat. When ready to eat, use a slotted spoon to fill hamburger buns with meat. Enjoy.

This recipe is one of my favorites because I can start it in the morning before I go to the barn and after a long day come in to a nice hot meal that only takes a few minutes to get to the table. The pickles give the meat a unique flavor that makes it taste like you fussed with it all day.

HERB-CRUSTED ROAST BEEF

1 boneless rump roast (4½-5 pounds)
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
1 teaspoon dried basil
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
½ teaspoon dried tarragon
½ teaspoon dried thyme
2¼ cups water, divided
2 teaspoons beef bouillon granules
¼ - ⅓ cup all-purpose flour

Place roast with fat side up in ungreased roasting pan. Combine the next five ingredients; pour over the roast. Combine parsley, basil, salt, pepper, tarragon, and thyme; rub over roast. Bake, uncovered, at 325 degrees for 1¼-2¼ hours or until meat reaches desired doneness (for rare, a meat thermometer should read 140 degrees; medium, 160 degrees; well-done, 170 degrees). Remove to a warm serving platter. Let stand 10-15 minutes. Meanwhile, add 2 cups water and bouillon to pan drippings; bring to a boil. Combine flour and remaining water until smooth; gradually add to pan. Cook and stir until bubbly and thickened. Slice roast; serve with gravy. Yield: 10-12 servings.

ROLLED FILLED ROUND STEAK

2-3 slices medium round steak
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 cup grated Romano cheese
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
Butter softened ¼-½ cup
Salt to taste
Pepper to taste
Oregano (optional)

Cut fat from meat and cut into strips similar to a jelly roll. In a bowl, mix bread crumbs, Romano cheese, garlic, salt, and pepper, and parsley flakes.

Put a thin slice butter on steak, then put bread crumb mixture on top of buttered meat. Roll meat like a jellyroll and tie with heavy white string. Roll the tied meat in any excess bread crumbs that have fallen from rolling meat. Place meat into medium roasting pan. Sprinkle oregano on top of meat rolls. Dot meat with pieces of butter.

Cover meat halfway with cold water.

Bake two hours at 350 degrees with a cover on top. As soon as meat is tender, remove cover and brown meat. This makes its own gravy. After meat is browned, remove string, slice, and serve with butter gravy.

This recipe makes a good Sunday dinner, served with mashed potatoes and side dishes of vegetables.

Although we are not a farm family, we are a rural family that raised seven children on wide variety of one-pot meals. The following is a great winter dish, easy to prepare and as popular today with our 13 grandchildren as it was with our children.

FLANK STEAK TERRIYAKE

Marinate 1 large flank steak for ½ day in the following mixture:
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
1 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon minced fresh ginger root or ½ teaspoon ground

Marinate steak in glass can pan or bottom of broiler pan (do not use aluminum). Baste the steak with marinate sauce or turn steak over 2-3 times during the half day. Broil 4 minutes on each side for rare or to desired doneness. Slice thinly on diagonal. An electric knife is a must to do the slicing. Serves 5-6.

Our family loves this recipe. We make it on the grill in the summer or the boiler of our oven. The leftovers are so good in salad or a sandwich.

248 FFA'ers Soar 'Above And Beyond' At FFA Convention

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About 2,000 FFA members, friends, and family attended the 73rd annual FFA Mid-Winter Convention Monday evening at the Farm Show Complex.

The theme for the convention was "Soaring Above and Beyond."

"This FFA officer team has won awards that have never been won before," said State Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes Jr., praising the FFA for its work, and highlighting the fact that state FFA now at the department of agriculture has a "headquarters so you can conduct your affairs."

Hayes reiterated his statement made to almost 1,000 agri-industry representatives and international dignitaries at the previous Agro 2002 show before the start of the Farm Show. He quoted the famous line from Charles Dickens' novel, "A Tale of Two Cities." It was the "best of times, and the worst of times," said Hayes. "Here, I only see the best of times. I see the FFA, I see agriculture, I see farm families — it doesn't get any better than this."

For Hayes' work in promoting the number one youth agriculture organization in the world, Dr. Kerry Richards presented Hayes with the FFA Foundation's Blue and Gold Award. She said Hayes was the "greatest friend Pennsylvania agriculture has."

The state youth ag organization has more than 8,000 members in more than 149 chapters. Of those chapters, about 248 FFA members received the Keystone Degree honor Monday evening, what Thomas Carey, director of the Pennsylvania Department of Education, called "the best of the best among your group."

Carey spoke about "excellence as a journey, and perfection as a destination," to the FFA members and families.

Dennis Grumbine, Farm Show director, was also honored with the Blue and Gold Award. Grumbine won the Keystone Farmer Degree in 1963 and served as state FFA president from 1965-1966. He has been with the Farm Show committee more than 20 years and director since 1995.

Another Blue and Gold winner at the event included Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kline. Steve has been West Snyder FFA adviser for 31 years.

Grumbine announced a new competition, the Equipment Presentation Awards, given to that FFA chapter who excelled at providing equipment information in the main exhibit area for the crowds attending the Farm Show. Five chapters competed, including Manheim, Manor, Cumberland Valley, Dover, and Mifflinburg. Winner was Cumberland Valley FFA.

The Dr. H.O. Sargent Award, given to expanding the role of diversity in FFA, was presented to Greenwood FFA's Kendi Brookhart. Brookhart is vice president of the Greenwood chapter and area secretary. She was honored for her student multicultural lecture series project.

2002 Regional Stars were selected. They included Isaac Bucher, south central, Gettysburg FFA, ag sales, service, and mechanics; Adam Cole, Apple City, south central, horticulture; Andrew Alwine, south central, Bermudian FFA, production; and Julie Noll, south central, Greenwood FFA, specialty agriculture.

Two national stars were also selected. They were Andrew Alwine and Isaac Bruce.

More information about the winners appeared in Lancaster Farming's Special Farm Show Section for the Keystone Degree recipients Jan. 5.

Superior Chapter Award honors went to Bellwood-Antis, Chestnut Ridge, Manheim, Philadelphia, Somerset, Big Spring, Derry, Mifflinburg, Redbank Valley, Central Columbia, Blue Juniata, Manor, and Solanco.

National Chapter Award honors went to Brothersvalley, Cloister, Greenwood, Selinsgrove, West Snyder, Cedar Crest, Cumberland Valley, Hans Herr, Spud Growers, Conococheague, Grassland, Middleburg, and Twin Valley.

Special Parent Awards were presented to Harry and Loretta Aurand, Middleburg FFA, with children Levi, 1993; Christopher, 1998; Amos, 2000; and Mary, 2002. An award was given to David and Marilyn Gross, Tulpehocken FFA, for children Sandra, 1993; Michael, 1996; Alicia, 1998; and Kristen, 2002.

An award was presented to Dwayne and Lou Ann Kauffman, McGuffey FFA, for children Carrie, 1996; Jennifer, 1997; Frances, 1999; and Dwayne, 2002.

A parent award was also presented to Carl and Mabel Lehman, Cumberland Valley FFA, for children Brian, 1989; Tim, 1991; Audrey, 1993; Heather, 1995; and Regina, 2002.

Projects In Place To Celebrate 4-H Centennial

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State is poised to celebrate the 2002 centennial of 4-H, one of America's premier youth organizations with 123,220 members in Pennsylvania and nearly seven million across the nation.

The name "4-H" conjures images of county fairs, cattle raising and the well-known clover logo. What often does not come to mind is the real heart of what 4-H is all about today: the betterment of community and country, the importance of active citizenship and young people working in partnership with adults to bring positive change to the world.

Pennsylvania 4-H is a youth-development education program of Penn State Cooperative Extension, designed to help young people become self-directed, productive and contributing members of a diverse society. In support of this mission, 4-H programs use research-based knowledge and the land-grant university system to provide formal and nonformal community-focused experiential learning that develops skills that benefit youth throughout life.

"Young people need the kind of hope that will help them aspire to become the best they can be," says Marilyn Corbin, Penn State Cooperative Extension and Outreach state program leader for children, youth and families. "4-H is nationally recognized as one of the foremost youth organizations in the country. With a strong local program that draws on the strengths of a statewide and nationwide organization, 4-H is uniquely positioned to help youth in this complex information age."

4-H has begun celebrating its centennial with conversations on youth development. Youth and adults in 3,067 communities across the nation will identify critical youth-development strategies for the 21st century. Participants will share ideas about the nation's youth-development needs and successes and develop strategies for their local communities. This effort will build on 4-H's historic commitment to engagement and collaboration, and will result in a national plan of action.

Delegates will be chosen at these sessions to carry local concerns and opinions to the state meetings. The Pennsylvania State Conversation on Youth Development was conducted in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg this week. The local conversations established the foundation for the statewide conversation. From the state meeting, delegates will be chosen to represent Pennsylvania at the national meeting in Washington, D.C., Feb. 23-March 3. Between 2,000 and 2,500 participants will attend.

"We want the nation to know that we're not building a granite monument to our 4-H centennial," says Don Floyd, president and CEO of the National 4-H Council. "Instead, in the tradition of 4-H, we're creating an action plan for families, youth leaders and communities across the nation to guide us in the coming century."

"Our goal is to send a delegation of 72 Pennsylvanians to the national conversation," says Michael Martin, Pennsylvania state coordinator for the 4-H centennial. "We want to send three representatives from each congressional district and three at large."

Another 4-H centennial project is supported by a grant from the Pennsylvania Public Television Network. Penn State Public Broadcasting, WPSX-Channel 3, will produce a documentary celebrating the 100th anniversary of 4-H in 2002.

In the program, 4-H youth from all walks of life will share their experiences in 4-H. Cooperative Extension agents from rural and urban counties, volunteers who have given countless hours of their time working with 4-H youth and Pennsylvania 4-H alumni who credit 4-H with their success will be featured.

"The ultimate goal of 4-H has always been and remains today to teach kids the life skills they will need to succeed," says Martin, "regardless of what avenue in life they choose."

Delaware Women In Agriculture Conference Set For Jan. 25

NEWARK, Del. — "Women in Agriculture: Challenges and Opportunities," a conference for women involved in production agriculture in Delaware and surrounding counties, will take place Friday, Jan. 25, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., following the Friends of Agriculture Breakfast at the Modern Maturity Center in Dover.

Sponsored by University of Delaware Cooperative Extension, the conference is to recognize women for their contributions to agribusinesses as well as to provide information to help today's farm women meet the increasing challenges of agriculture.

Workshops will be presented on such topics as basic marketing, family communication and stress management, finances, taxes and estate planning. The cost is $10 for the conference ($20 for both the Friends breakfast and conference). Lunch is included. Cooperative Extension programs are open to anyone regardless of race, color, sex, disability, age or national origin.

Speakers will be women from Delaware and Nebraska. The event is modeled after a successful Nebraska conference known as "Women in Agriculture: The Critical Difference," which has been held annually for 17 years.

Following the conference, there will be a facilitated discussion to plan for future conferences and programs specifically for women. Participants are encouraged to register for this optional session.

Reservations are required. For registration information, call Laurie Wolinski, Kent County Extension office, at (302) 730-4000 or Alison DePaola at (302) 831-6540.

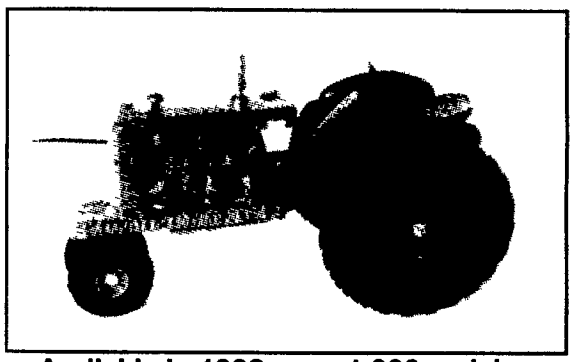
In 1992, the Oliver 770 offered a choice of rubber tires or steel wheels.



Available in 1993 were 1,000 serial numbered models of the Sheppard Diesel SD-3.

In 1996, 1,000 Case-IH 7220 Magnums made by Ertl were sold.

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "You can separate the men from the boys by the price of their toys" is certainly true during the Pennsylvania Farm Show conducted in Harrisburg this week.

Don't be fooled — those toy tractors selling at a booth may be just what a boy wants — but it's his dad that is buying them for himself.

The typical collector is 40 years old, and his children learn quickly not to touch Daddy's toys.

That's because models in tip top shape with box included increase substantially in value. For example a 1952 corn picker that sold for $2 will bring $500 today.

A commemorative model featuring the Farm Show logo has been offered each year for the past 12 years.

Dave Nolt, Farm Show collectible coordinator, said that people lined up at the booth as early as 4 a.m. to buy the limited editions before they could preorder the collector tractors. At times, extra farm show security must be hired to keep impatient buyers in line.

Nolt's attraction to farm toys began when he was a child accompanying his father (a farm machinery dealer) to farms. The younger Nolt knew all about the real equipment and had lots of farm toys and equipment of his own. But the idea that adults collected toy tractors was a novel idea to him until the mid 1960s. At that time, he collected plastic model cars given as dealer promotions to customers who purchased new vehicles. In search of a new one, Nolt attended an antique car flea market where he saw a toy tractor display set up by a Midwestern dealer.

The display spurred his interest and his memories. Nolt was astonished to learn that hundreds of men in the Midwest accumulated toy tractors. The following year, Nolt paid $20 for a solid cast aluminum John Deere A '46 that he found at a local swap meet.

"I felt a bit guilty about paying that much," Nolt said of his first purchase. "But it's worth about $100 now."

Nolt was hooked. He discovered an antique toy magazine that dealt exclusively in farm toys. Although collecting was popular in the Midwest, Nolt did not know of anyone in Pennsylvania collecting the toys.

"The first four to five years, I found a significant buy almost every week," Nolt said. Since then, hundreds of other Pennsylvanians and those in neighboring states developed a hankering for "toys that reminded them of their childhoods."

Nolt attends a three-day national event in Iowa where 15,000 collectors gather annually. Nolt said that if a hobbyist collector has a spouse skeptical of the value of toy collecting, take her to that show. "It is not unusual for a serious collector to have a $100,000 collection," Nolt said.

To assist collectors, Nolt publishes a farm price guide for the past 22 years. To arrive at the figures, Nolt pays for auction results from the Midwest and uses a data base to determine auction averages. Nolt also writes a column for Toy Farmer magazine.

For his private collection, Nolt limits his purchases to those that ignite childhood memories, primarily New Holland brands. He also collects pedal tractors, which have quadrupled in prices in recent years. Nolt organizes tractor pulls for different events.

"But I cut back considerably," Nolt said of the pulls. He said that he had always had a waiver signed by parents whose child participated in the events. Although no one had ever been hurt during the pulls, one parent said, "I'll sign this but if Sally is hurt, I'll still sue you."

That statement caused Nolt to reconsider the liability and he concluded the chances, however low, were not worth the risk.

Nolt's primary focus is selecting Farm Show collectibles of 1/16th scale show tractors, Winross trucks, Ertl collector banks, HO scale train cars, and bean bag type farm animals. He also secures licenses to have John Deere models and attachments manufactured. These are high-end models with low productions that average about $300 each. Nolt has a special arrangement with the Deere Company, which gets a royalty for every model Nolt sells.

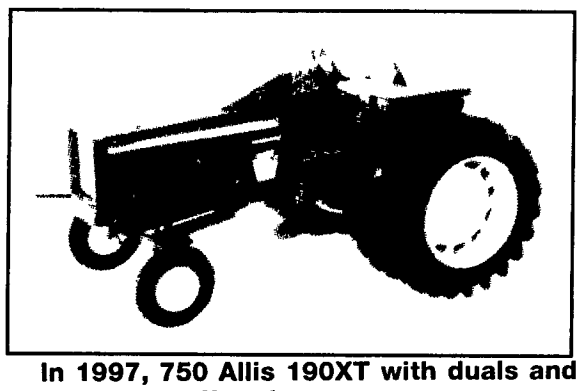
The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture also receives a royalty for each Farm Show edition sold. The royalties are used to help sponsor awards and premiums presented to exhibitors.

This year's cast metal, 1/16th scale State Farm Show model of a John Deere 620 sold for $56.65 — but is undeliverable until April.

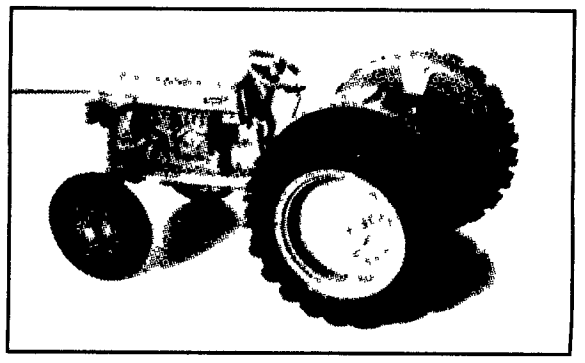
Unfortunately, a serious production glitch prevented the model from being available during Farm Show week. Nolt said the JD 620s were ordered with many options and features to make them the most realistic 620s Ertle ever built.

Collectors who preordered the JD 620 were sent a letter of apology and a promise of a nice gift for those willing to wait for the shipment.

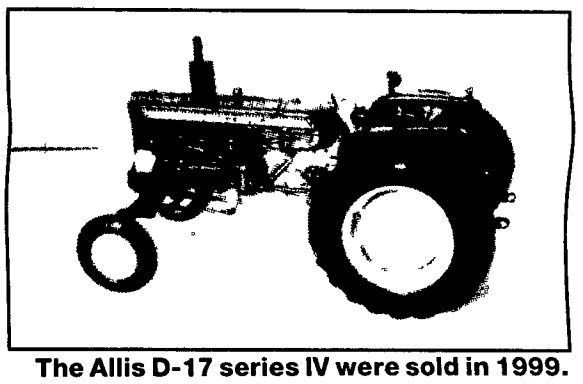
To learn more about farm toy collecting, check out Nolt's Web site at www.dnolt.com, or write to him at P.O. Box 553, Gap, PA 17527.



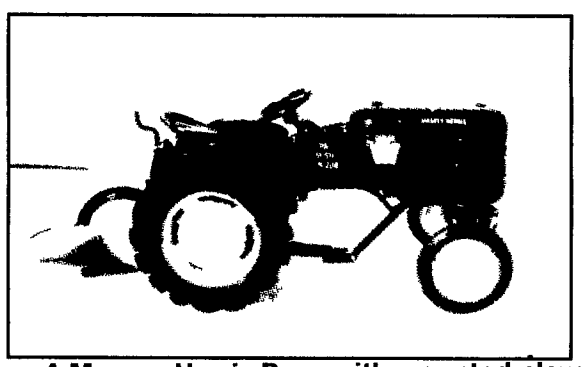
In 1997, 750 Allis 190XT with duals and singles were offered.



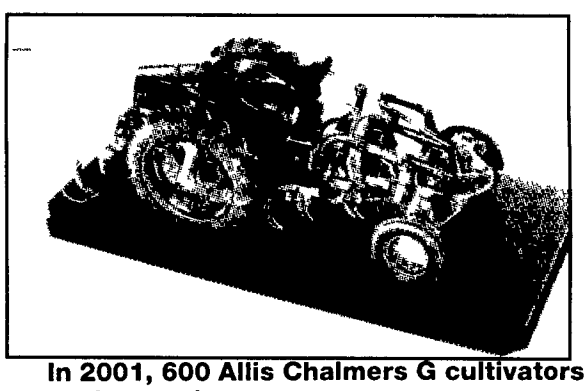
In 1998, 500 Ferguson 20 were sold.



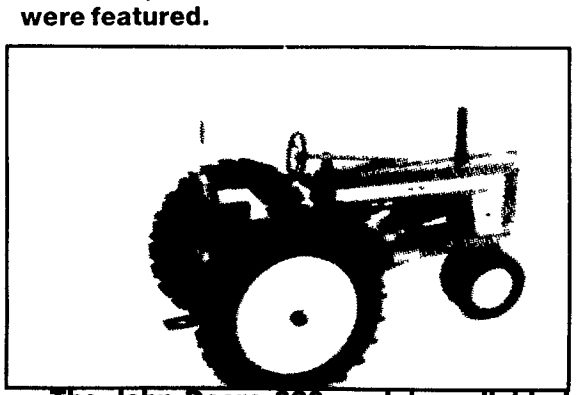
The Allis D-17 series IV were sold in 1999.



A Massey Harris Pony with mounted plow was offered in 2000.



In 2001, 600 Allis Chalmers G cultivators were featured.



The John Deere 620 model, available in April, has attracted buyers from Ireland and South Africa.

Staffordshire Figures Still Charm Collectors

Nothing points out the changing fashions in collecting better than the various figures made by the Stsaffordshire pottery in England in the early 19th century.

Animal figures, especially spaniels, were Victorian favorites from the 1840s to the 1890s. They were out of favor with collectors until the 1920s-1930s when reproductions filled the market.

As in Victorian days, the figurines were found on mantels. Prices were high not only for animal figures but various historical and allegorical figures. Collectors had lost interest by the 1940s and prices were down. Then, in the 1980s they once again caught collectors fancies and prices zoomed. These days, according to last year's Miller's International Price Guide, prices can be as low as $350 for a pair of late 19th century Spaniel figurines.

However, as they point out, rarities even when damaged or with known restorations sell for several thousand dollars.

CLUES: Because the early 19th century pieces are the most expensive when they can be authenticated, it is important to recognize them. Best advice is to become familiar with the almost naive painting appearance and their feel. Hundreds of these figures were painted by hand, so no two of the early ones will look alike. Part of the charm of these early pieces may also be due to the fact that children were among the factory workers, who did some painting.

The earliest animals were farmyard creatures: dogs, cats, lambs, and a variety of birds.

Early figurines were hand-molded and the interior surface is smooth. Later figures were made with a slip-casting technique that left slight indentations.

Examine the vent or firing holes. Current reproductions can have holes as large as a quarter. Early, authentic figures have no holes.

Since early molds still exist it is easy to reproduce the figures.

Expensive are the "Bocage" pottery animal figures. (Bocage is a foliage decoration that served as a back of the figure). Be sure that the glaze is original. I have come across some figures with a dull, unfired glaze, showing the piece had either

Antique Detective Questions And Answers

What can you tell me about this settee? As you see it has a wood frame and carved animal paw feet.

T.D.M. — Lower Burnell, PA

Your late 19th century settee could sell at auction for $400 or more.

I have several of my mother's white, china soup dishes. They are marked on the back, "Charles G. Baker, Burslem, England. Imperial Ironstone china. When were they made and how much would they be worth?

Z.R. — Franklin, PA

From the early 1840s to 1891, white ironstone wares were made in Staffordshire potteries in Burslem, England. The most interesting and collectible pieces have patterns. In good condition your soup bowls, c.1870s could each sell for $25 at the flea market.

not been properly fired when made or simply painted over without glazing.

Staffordshire figures were never marked. Other English factories that did similar figures, such as Bow and Derby, marked their pieces.

An unusual bocage figure, early 19th century can sell at auction for $6,200 or more.

By the 1840s portraits of famous people became popular, and their names were printed on the front. The facial features were copied from journal pages and printed music. Some figures were incorrectly labeled, such as one of Benjamin Franklin labeled as George Washington. A mid-19th century figure of Franklin had an estimated auction value of $1,300-$1,600 in the 2001 Miller's Price Guide.

The Victorian Staffordshire figures were made to decorate fireplace mantels and so the backs were flat and not painted. Popular spaniel figures ranged from three or four inches to 18 inches high.

When lustreware became popular in the 1840s, copper lustre was sometimes applied to the spaniels.

If you would like to start a collection, visit the various dealers carrying the figures at the antique shows. Now that you know what the clues are you have a good chance of finding good pieces.

Frank Davis Goes Back-To-Back In The Farm Show Wool Competition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Frank Davis was, once again, the big winner in the Pennsylvania Farm Show Wool Competition, held this week in Harrisburg.

Davis, who hails from Slippery Rock in Butler County, came away with the grand champion fleece for the second year in a row. This many-time champion in the wool competition also exhibited the champion natural colored fleece and the champion and reserve champion fleeces in the commercial farm flock division. Davis, who raises 140 head of sheep on Pine Row Farm, has been entering fleeces at the Farm Show for the past seven years. One of his most memorable accomplishments came at last year's Farm Show when he received seven of the eight rosettes.

Burkes Little Twenty Sheep Farm, Freeport, Armstrong County, exhibited the reserve grand champion fleece, which also took champion honors in the breed fleece division. Connie Scott of Pulaski, Lawrence County, came away with reserve champion in the breed fleece division.

An entry from Sheepberry Farms, located in Halifax, Dauphin County, rounded out the winners taking reserve champion in the natural colored fleece division.

Judge Tom McIlwain commented that "the quality of the fleeces exhibited at this year's Farm Show was excellent as always." He noted that the natural colored fleece division showed a remarkable improvement in quality over past years.

Wool judging is based on numerous criteria: including the overall cleanliness of the fleece. The length and strength of the wool staple, as well as the amount of crimp are also important factors for consideration. All fleece must be properly wrapped and tied with paper twine to be acceptable for exhibition.

Healthy Farms And Communities Focus At 11th PASA Conference

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — More than a thousand farmers and friends will convene for the 11th annual Farming for the Future Conference Feb. 8 and 9 in State College.

"Healthy Farms, Healthy Communities: Our Link to a Sustainable Future" is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA). All farmers and others are invited to the dialogue and excitement at the Penn Stater Conference Center Hotel.

Farmers, researchers and ag professionals will be featured in more than 45 workshops in five time slots. In the series titled "The Farmers' Own School of Family Farm Economics," a dozen farmers will share the intimate details of their gross sales, expenses and income — and what they've learned. Other workshop themes will be health (human, soil and livestock), diversifying farm enterprises, grass-based livestock and agriculture building community.

Keynote speakers are John Ikerd, professor emeritus of agricultural economics at University of Missouri, and Cathrine Sneed, executive director of The Garden Project, San Francisco, Calif. Ikerd has inspired many farm audiences message that a "people-centered" agriculture allows farmers to succeed by utilizing greater creativity, dignity of work and attention to social equity. Sneed will describe how teaching life-skills to former inmates through commercial urban farming gives a real chance for them to contribute to their communities once released.

The four "Farmers Own School of Family Farm Economics" sessions are part of eight workshops dealing with financial aspects of sustainable farming. A dozen producers will come ready to share their intimate financial details, using standardized reporting forms. "I've been thinking about this for years," says series organizer Jim Crawford of New Morning Farm, in Hustontown, Huntington County. "I didn't want to have to settle for one workshop. Finances demand more explanation."

Experienced producers from Maine, New York and Vermont will share their farm's financial records in two sessions on Friday. The intent is to allow others to learn from their mistakes, successes and analysis. In a livestock session, veteran dairy, beef and poultry farmers will use the same financial reporting system to explain their accounts.

Vegetable farmers who are willing to share their finances will have the chance in the conference's final workshop slot. To participate in this "learning circle" format, contact the PASA office in advance of the conference to obtain the suggested accounting format.

Other economics topics include:

- "After 16 Years of Grazing: Keeping It Simple Works the Best." Art Thicke reflects on managing life, work and finances on a Minnesota family dairy farm.
- "Big Bucks and Capital on the Vegetable Farm." Five Pennsylvania farmers explain their struggle with how and when they've made capital improvements. These farms each started "from scratch" from 19 to 30 years ago.
- "Not Just Chicken Scratch — 100 to 10,000 in Four Years." Canadian farmers Ron and Sheila Hamilton will present two poultry farm development workshops with the common heading. The first is on how they scaled up production from 100 to 10,000 birds in four years, the second on how they marketed them.

Workshop highlights include:

- Not Just Chicken Scratch — 100 to 100,000 in Four Years. Ron and Sheila Hamilton of Armena, Alberta, have been raising certified-organic, pasture-raised meats since 1997. Last summer they sold 10,500 broilers, hundreds of other types of meat fowl, as well as hogs and beef. They will cover production from brooding to processing in the first of two workshops. The second session will cover their marketing experience: farmers' markets, farm-gate sales, health food stores and white-table restaurants.
- How's My Compost Quality? — Will Brinton of Woods End Research Labs will share his international expertise on compost. He will present compost quality benchmarks for agricultural use, including analysis of contaminants. In a second workshop, explain how well-made compost, in a biologically monitored system, can achieve new levels of productivity in intensive cropping systems. A Pennsylvania native, Brinton runs Woods End Research Labs in Maine. He will be joined by Eric Burkhart of the Penn State Horticulture Department.
- Naturopathic Medicine — Sustainable Agriculture: Natural Allies. Dr. Gregory Pais has worked in the field of natural medicine for more than 20 years. A licensed naturopath for the last eight years, he uses clinical nutrition, herbal medicine, and homeopathy in his practice. He will examine how a relationship between sustainable agriculture and natural healthcare can benefit both sectors.
- Why Butter is Better. Sally Fallon, founding president of the Weston A. Price Foundation, will outline the 11 common factors of healthy traditional diets. She will point out dangers in modern soy foods. In her second workshop, Fallon will give practical steps for implementing nourishing traditional diets in your own kitchen: breakfast foods, snacks, soups, salads, enzyme-enriched condiments and beverages.
- Food is Elementary: Why We Need Food Literacy in Our Schools. Antonia Demas — a Ph.D. in education, nutrition, and anthropology — has developed food based curricula for 30 years for socially and ethnically diverse groups. She finds that early education can help children reduce their risk of diet-related chronic diseases.

A chef, a marketer of sustainable foods and a leader in Slow Food Pittsburgh will team up for "Appealing to and Selling to the Urban Customer."

Other workshops will be about managing diverse mixed species in pastures; using cover crops and season extension to produce direct-sale produce; reclaiming the land-grant mission of true service to rural communities; operating a bed and breakfast on a farm; harvesting a woodlot for building timbers; operating a five-cow micro-dairy; revealing the true costs of food; and organic berry production.

The Sustainable Trade Show and Marketplace will fill the center's exhibit area with companies offering the latest agricultural hardware, ag products and services. Farm and food advocacy organizations will exhibit their efforts to build new markets and educate consumers.

As a convenience, vendors selling farm-fresh and ag products will be grouped together. A "PASA Mercantile" display will offer PASA-imprinted gear and feature signed books by major conference speakers.

Three of the conference meals will feature sustainably, organically, and regionally raised foods from more than 40 PASA members.

Also featured are youth program — by reservation only — for children (K-8); scholarships for young and beginning farmers; PASA annual meeting; and a PASA awards banquet with a local band.

Reserve accommodations at the Conference Center before Jan. 8 by calling (800) 893-4602. The conference opens 9 a.m. Friday, Feb. 8, and closes 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 9.

For details, contact PASA, 114 West Main St., P.O. Box 419, Millheim PA 16854-0419, (814) 349-9856, fax (814) 349-9840, info@pasafarming.org. Full details and on-line registration at www.pasafarming.org Early-bird registration discount ends Jan. 10.

High School Rodeo Brings Thrills And Spills To Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In the grand scheme of things, eight seconds doesn't seem like much. That is, unless you're a 125-pound high school student strapped to the back of a 2,000 pound bull with horns a mile long and some ominous name like "Killer" or "Dr. Death." That is just what happened in the Large Arena of the Farm Show Complex as spectators witnessed the show of true courage at the Pennsylvania High School Rodeo, held in conjunction with the 86th Pennsylvania State Farm Show. At the end, Clint Smith came out victorious riding a bull called "Oreo" for a 74-point ride.

What could make anyone desire to compete in such a dangerous sport? Carl Adams of New Castle, Lawrence County, has been competing in rodeos since the age of 12. Carl, who competes in the bull riding and saddle bronc riding events, was unable to participate in the Farm Show Rodeo due to severe neck injuries sustained during a recent competition. Through it all, Carl says he has stayed positive and never once thought of giving up.

Rodeo is a sport unlike any other. The risks are great, but the thrills are even greater Carl, like most competitors, says he simply "turns the fear into something positive and goes out there with a winning attitude."

In addition to bull riding, the rodeo also included the following nine events: bareback riding, barrel racing, breakaway roping, calf roping, goat tying, pole bending, saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, and team roping. Although sponsored by the Pennsylvania High School Rodeo Association (PHSRA), the rodeo was open to high school students from any Northeastern state without its own High School Rodeo Association. Dave Martin, owner of the livestock used for the event, said that, "Pennsylvania truly is the premier High School Rodeo state in the East, an accomplishment the state should be proud of."

Eighteen-year old high school senior Jake Ebersole of Dallastown, York County, came in first in the calf roping with a time of 29.539 seconds. Jake has been competing in rodeos for the past seven years. In 2001, Jake had the honor of attending the Professional Rodeo Circuit Association (PRCA) First Frontier Circuit Finals. For a high school student, it is quite an honor merely to ride in a professional event, let alone to place. Jake was lucky enough to bring home twelfth place honors in the calf roping at the PRCA Circuit Finals.

Like many other competitors, he got his start in rodeo through his older sister, Tabitha, who competed in barrel racing and pole bending. Rodeo truly is a family sport.

Stephanie Victor of Hummelstown, Dauphin County, has been competing in the barrel racing, pole bending, and goat tying events for the past five years. She says that being a member of the Rodeo Association has taught her to be more responsible and has provided her with many life skills that she will use in the future. Like any other high school sport, rodeo is about more than winning; it is about the education and betterment of its participants.

Pennsylvania High School Rodeo Association members may compete at approximately 20 rodeos and a state championship each year.

The Brillion 3-Shank Sub-Soiler shatters hard pans down to 21 inches, using a more maneuverable 90-inch-wide frame.

New Mid-Size Sub-Soiler Delivers Performance On A Budget

BRILLION, Wis. — Brillion's new mid-size 2- and 3-Shank Sub-Soilers deliver performance and durability, and they fit nicely in most budgets.

"Producers looking for a deep-ripping tool in a relatively narrow width will be pleased with our 'Built Brillion Tough' durability and competitive price," says Gary Wallander, product support coordinator for Brillion Iron Works. "This is the perfect tool for shattering hard pans to improve moisture retention and root growth."

Designed as a companion to Brillion's 1- and 2-Shank Sub-Soilers, the 2- or 3-shank models loosen compacted soil down to 21-inches, using a narrow 90-inch frame design. The double bar, all welded structural steel frame, allows infinite spacing up to 80 inches between shanks on a 2-shank model and 40-inches on a 3-shank model.

The 90-inch wide machine features a Category II three point that is Quick Coupler compatible. The narrow, overall width and three-point mount allows this tool to fit through narrow openings, transport easily and turn in a small area.

Sub-Soiler construction features heavy-duty shank clamps, tough ductile iron shanks with reversible wear strips and 2-inch wide points. The 5-inch by 7-inch double tube frame has ⅜-inch thick walls. Shanks are protected with ⅝-inch Grade 5 shear bolts.

Kinze new 3650 Twin-Line® Planter with unique, in-line folding systems for narrow transport.

Kinze Unveils Bulk Fill Seed Distribution With New Twin-Line® Planter

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa — The new 3650 Twin-Line® Planter — with unique, in-line folding systems for narrow transport and a choice of Solid Row Interplant® or Liquid Fertilizer Packages — features a large bulk fill seed distribution system for the 12 Row N and 16 Row N planters. (According to Kinze officials, the 3650 is scheduled for limited production and will be available for the 2002 planting season.)

Introduced at the company's recent annual dealer meeting, the new 3650 Twin-Line® Planter comes equipped with twin bulk seed hoppers (55 bushel total capacities on 12 Row N; 85 bushel on 16 Row N) to provide greater seed capacity and dramatically increase loading speeds (versus conventional seed hoppers). Plus, they're easy to access and maintain. Both pivot in conjunction with the planter's three-section frame as it flexes. Full-length 2-inch by 6-inch tubing provides structural support within the hopper. Gas-filled shock absorbers, under the full-length hinged lids, simplify opening and closing.

Inside the hoppers are nylon bristle-tipped, adjustable-speed augers which slowly elevate the seed from the bottom of the hopper to a full-length PVC pipe distribution manifold. The manifold (located in the top of each hopper) feeds all rows through molded plastic drop collars. In addition, it can be rotated to shut off distribution to the front rows when planting 30-inch rows only. (Feeding front and rear rows with an auger, from the top of the bulk hopper, ensures constant seed flow with less seed in the hopper. And, it lowers the center of gravity.)

The seed meters are mounted on molded, high-density polyethylene mini-hoppers on each row unit. The hoppers are fed via three-inch (I.D.) wire reinforced, translucent hoses. Seed capacity in each minihopper and drop hose is approximately ¼ bushel.

Two centrally-mounted hydraulic motors, plumbed in series and operated from a third selective control valve, allow the operator to adjust auger speed to meet the wide range of seed demand from planting varies crops. Seed overflow is recirculated to the lower portion of the bulk seed reservoir. Hydraulic requirement is 2 gpm at 1500 psi.

The 3650 Twin-Line® Planter consists of double 5-inch by 7-inch toolbar frame construction with heavy duty wing hinges; low-profile, two-fold row markers with 16-inch diameter solid concave blades and cast iron hubs; a standard point row clutch; plus, industrial-quality hydraulic cylinders.

Four row (12RN) and six row (16RN) wing sections are hinged to the four-row center section. Both wing sections flex up to 7° (up or down) and are hydraulically locked for transport by the built-in counter-balance valves on the wing lock cylinders.

Complete electric, hydraulic control of the row markers, point row clutches and the folding/unfolding functions are handled right from the tractor seat. Backlighting of the console face assists night planting. (Three SCV outlets are required to operate the 3650).

A unique wheel module design centers the wheel track outside the end row unit, eliminating extra wheel tracks, and incorporates an end-mounted seed rate transmission, contact drive tire and wing lift cylinder/tire mounting into a single, compact unit. (One module per wing on the 12 size; two modules on the 16 row size.)

Pumpkin Entry Judged Best Of Show In Vegetables

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Vegetables of all sizes, shapes, and colors graced the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show for the annual vegetable judging competition on Friday, Jan. 4. After a morning of judging, Chris Rickard of Honesdale, Wayne County, emerged the victor and received best of show honors for his carving-type pumpkin. Judge John Smith of York County commented that the pumpkin was "an excellent specimen that was near perfect in shape and that withstood a great degree of competition within its class."

A single entry of leeks came in a close second for best of show. Livengood's Produce of Lancaster County exhibited the leeks which the judge deemed as "exceptional from a size and quality standpoint."

This year, numerous varieties of vegetables were exhibited, ranging from pumpkins to onions to celery. Each type of vegetable has unique judging criteria, making the decision of the winners a difficult one. Alfred And Donna Rovenolt Win The Alfred Rovenolt Sr. Memorial Trophy At Pa. Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Alfred and Donna Rovenolt of Turbotville, was announced as the winner of the Alfred Rovenolt Sr. Memorial Trophy at the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show for their six horse hitch. The Rovenolts received the trophy from their family on Sunday night of the Farm Show.

In addition to the six horse hitch, the Rovenolts also won the four horse hitch, unicorn hitch, Percheron mens' cart, and Percheron ladies' cart. The mens' and ladies' cart championships are the Dale and Landis Family Memorial.

The Dale Landis Family resides on a farm in Lititz, located in Lancaster County; they are involved in raising and showing Belgian and Percheron draft horses. The Landis Family have been members and a director of the Pa. Draft Horse and Mule Association for the past 20 years. This memorial is in honor of Lowell and Delmar's father and Mrs. Landis' husband, who was a farmer and draft horse lover for many years.

In the team class, Chad and John Cole took first place. This team has the honor of chauffeuring the Governor in the opening ceremonies at the 2003 Farm Show. This will be the second time in a row that this family has had this honor. The Coles stand three Percheron stallions at their farm and show nation wide with their fifty beautiful Percherons.

In the other draft horse classes, Ken and Karen Sandoe won the team obstacle course, Belgian mens' cart, and Belgian ladies' cart. Shannon Manning, the Pa. draft horse queen, won the draft horse under saddle.

Roger and Linda Thoms won the Clydesdale/Shire mens' cart and the one hitch horse, division 1 (junior youth to drive) and James Hubbe Jr. and Lisa Jones won the junior and senior showmanship classes. Draft horse showing takes a lot of time, money and effort to do well and all of these families are to be commended.

Manning Crowned Pa. Draft Horse Queen

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Shannon Manning of Delta in York, was named the Pa. draft horse queen on Sunday night of the Farm Show. Shannon is the daughter of Michael and Elizabeth Manning and has been showing horses since she was 11 with Marvyn Forwood. She showed her Percheron gelding, Jay, at the Farm Show and took first place in draft horse riding class and second in the youth senior cart class.

Shannon is a graduate of Kennard-Dale High School and now works at a horse farm where she trains riding horses. As Pa. draft horse queen, Shannon expects to be going to several shows, clinics, and events. She said that she "has been working towards being the Pa. draft horse queen and is looking forward to the up coming year."

GEHL. MODEL RB 2580 ROUND BALER 4'x5'
Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System

GREAT BALING STARTS HERE Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System Here's how it works The incoming crop is pulled off the pickup by the aggressive action of two power in-feed rolls – a 6-inch-diameter pivoting power in-feed roll on top and an 8-inch diameter fixed power in-feed roll on the bottom

The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber An extension spring keeps the toproll under constant downward force

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches

The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in-feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in-feed roll, both turning inward, pinches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop. Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup

THREE-BALL TWINE BOX. Gehl balers are designed to keep you going all day long with six-ball twine storage. They're loaded in full-size doors that open to provide easy access to baler components like an optional chain oiler system or the Total Density Control adjustments.

GAUGE WHEELS. Allow the pickup to follow field contours while keeping tines out of the dirt. That causes wear and tear on the pickup and means less dirt in your bale. Gauge wheels are standard equipment with the wide pickup and an option with some others.

BELTS. Deluxe balers feature [illegible] (pictured above) with [illegible]. The belts are a 6-1/2 inches wide for [illegible] belts and less space between the belts and side sheets. Belts are configured in a staggered pattern to minimize trash build-up.

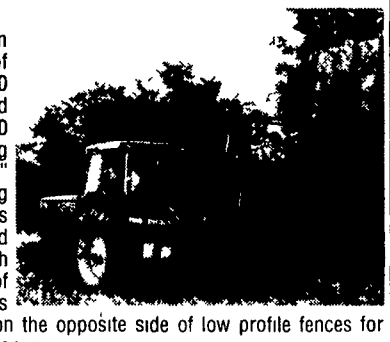
Just arrived in time for wintertime fence line trimming with 21' reach! THEY REALLY WORK!

Purchase a tractor & mower and reclaim your wide fence rows today! Ask about financing

Servis® 1948 Hydraulic Boom Flail Cutters are designed for mowing grass and cutting brush in hard-to-reach areas including roadsides, ditchbanks, ponds, and fence rows Large model with up to 18'8" horizontal reach and up to 4" diameter brush cutting

The Servis® 2160 Hydraulic Boom Rotary Cutter from Servis-Rhino® is designed for agricultural applications including cutting grass, weeds, and material up to 2" in diameter on an intermittent basis



With a maximum vertical reach of 22'6" and 190 degrees of head movement, the 2160 is ideal for trimming back brush up to 2" in diameter along fence rows or edges of open fields and other hard-to-reach areas The design of the boom arm allows the 2160 to mow on the opposite side of low profile fences for easier fence row cleanup

Narrow Transport Width. The 2160 can be folded into a transport width of 113" for easier travel on roads and through gates Replaceable, full-length skid shoes are standard to help prevent wear to the deck mainframe The 3/16" pan blade carrier is reinforced with a 3/4" steel plate in the bottom of the pan for added strength and momentum The deck side skirts are 1/4" x 9-1/4" to handle large volumes of material Front and rear rubber safety deflectors are standard equipment

DB150. Over 30 years of hydraulic mower design experience has made the Rhino® DB150 the preferred choice of experienced operators for the mowing of pond banks, levees, drainage ditches, and hard-to-reach areas.

The DB150 can extend to a maximum of 158" from the center line of the tractor allowing the 60 inch rotary head to cut areas that are difficult or impossible to reach with ordinary mowers By being hydraulically driven, maintenance is greatly reduced with the absence of belts and pulleys The DB150 outperforms many competitive units with smaller hydraulic systems The DB150 utilizes a 60 gallon hydraulic system which allows the unit to run cooler in tough mowing conditions The large reservoir also serves as a counterweight and remains stationary on the mainframe, eliminating the potential traffic hazard of a movable counter-balance weight The DB150 features a heavy-duty three-point hitch using a lower double lug hitch system to fit a wide range of tractors To help insure a clean cut, the DB150 features updraft blades and a blade tip speed of 20,028 FPM.

SNOW WOLF Ultra Series
Heavy Duty Skid Loader Plows

Trip Cutting Edge Design
The SnowWolf Ultra features a trip cutting edge design which allows full down pressure for incredible scraping ability in forward or backdragging situations It eliminates "false tripping" from snow load and will only engage if you actually strike an immovable object

Massive Construction
The SnowWolf Ultra is designed to take abuse from the largest skid loaders At approximately 100 pounds per foot of plowing width, you know the Ultra means business

Food for Thought
Did you know that a modern skid loader with a high speed transmission and a SnowWolf Ultra will outplow a pickup truck under most plowing conditions? A cleaner job, closer to the obstacles (without worrying about your fenders), and more acres plowed in the same amount of time!

"This Mixer Really Mixes Hay"
- Willis Conrad, Jr., Cedar Lane Farm

"We feed 8 lbs. of hay per cow. Our old Oswalt 250 couldn't handle that kind of volume. This Rotomix 354 that we got from Lapp's Barn Equipment, mounted on a 1980 International truck, does a great job. It handles 600 lb. of hay by weight."

Willis Conrad, Jr. is farm manager of Cedar Lane Farm owned by the Tucker Johnson family. They're milking 270 head kept in a tie stall barn, with a herd average of 28,200

Pennsylvania Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program

What is CREP?

The Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) is a federal/state partnership with a goal of enrolling 100,000 acres of highly erodible cropland and pasture in conservation plantings to improve water quality and provide improved wildlife and fisheries habitat.

What Are My Obligations?

Farmers and landowners must agree to establish and maintain grass, shrubs or trees for the life of the contract (10-15 years). No harvesting is allowed except for emergency purposes as declared by the Secretary of Agriculture. Once cover is established, no maintenance mowing is permitted during the primary nesting season of April 1 - July 15.

Will My Land Be Open To Public Access?

You maintain control of your land except for USDA access to inspect for contract compliance.

USDA Farm Service Agency
USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service
Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture
Pennsylvania Dept. of Environmental Protection
Pennsylvania Game Commission
Pennsylvania Dept. of Conservation & Natural Resources
Pennsylvania Fish & Boat Commission
Pennsylvania Assoc. of Conservation Districts
State Conservation Commission
Ducks Unlimited
Chesapeake Bay Foundation
Center for Rural Pennsylvania
Pheasants Forever
Governor's Sportsman Advisory Council
Pennsylvania Farm Bureau
Pennsylvania State Cooperative Extension

Benefits of CREP

- Reduced soil erosion
- Improved water quality
- Increase in farm income on marginal land
- Improved wildlife and fisheries habitat
- Improved herd health

What Land Is Eligible?

All cropland or marginal pasture within 180 feet of a stream is eligible. Highly erodible cropland farther than 180 feet from a stream may also be eligible.

What are my costs?

Just a willingness to get involved in conservation. In addition to your annual rental payment, USDA, the Commonwealth of PA and Chesapeake Bay Foundation/Ducks Unlimited will reimburse up to 100% for a variety of Conservation Practices (CPs).

How do I participate?

Simply contact the County FSA office listed below:

York Man Takes Best Of Show Honors In Edible Nuts Competition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — English walnuts owned by Charles Richcrick of York County were crowned the grand champion of show and best of show on Jan. 4 at the 86th Annual Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Charles Richcrick has been exhibiting edible nuts at the Farm Show for 35-40 years. He has 100 trees on 4-4.5 acres in York County.

Richcrick won honors in best of class in the English walnut and filbert/hazelnut categories. Receiving best seedling of show was Charles Rife of Mechanicsburg, Cumberland County.

Judge Kenneth Bauman, New Carlisle, Ohio, evaluated entries in 25 different classes including walnuts, chestnuts, pecans, hickories, and many hybrids. "When judging edible nuts, look for crackability, texture of the kernel, and the size of the nut," Bauman adds. Bauman has judged at the Farm Show for the past eight to nine years and maintains 100 trees in Ohio. Five years ago, he won first place nationally in a competition in Lincoln, Neb. Other winners were: Best kernel of show — pecans: Earl Livengood, Lancaster, Lancaster County; Largest of show: Fred Bodenberg, Aspers, Adams County; Best of class — black walnut seedlings: Miles O. Nolt, Manheim, Lancaster County; Buartnuts, butternuts, hickory hybrid: George Wells, Harrisburg, Dauphin County; Heartnuts: Parker Cole, Gettysburg, Adams County; Shagbark hickory: Kenneth Buckwalter, Palmyra, Lebanon County; Shellbark hickory: Tanner Cool, Biglerville, Adams County; Pecans: Jere Groff, Lancaster, Lancaster County; Hicans: Wilfred Longsdorff, Lancaster, Lancaster County; Chestnuts: Richard Longsdorff, Lancaster, Lancaster County; and Almonds: Bertran Harner, Valley View, Schuylkill County.

Padula Farms Captures Top Honors In Potato Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Padula Farms of Bath, Northampton County, captured top honors in the potato judging competition at the 86th Pennsylvania Farm Show. The farm took open division champion and grand champion overall with their entry of Eva variety potatoes.

Judge John Smith of York County commented that the grand champion entry excelled in "uniformity of size, shape, and color. It is obvious that the exhibitor invested a great deal of time to select such a uniform group," the judge said. Padula Farms also captured the blue ribbon in the largest potato category, with their Viking variety potato weighing in at a whopping two pounds and ½ ounces.

This year's reserve grand champion entry was exhibited by Spring Creek Farms of Mertztown, Berks County. Brandon Komar of Ligonia, Westmoreland County, received the Youth Champion award for his Red Pontiac variety potatoes. Brandon is a member of the Westmoreland County 4-H program.

Crossbreds Top Jr. Market Swine Show

Lehigh Youth Takes Home First Farm Show Champion Banner

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Two crossbred market hogs emerged at the top of a total of about 360 junior market swine at the Farm Show here Monday.

Daniel Billig, a 4-H'er from the Lehigh Valley, exhibited the overall grand champion, a 251-pounder.

Billig has been showing livestock for about five years. This was the first time he took home a Farm Show champion banner.

The son of Theresa and Tim Billig, Daniel is an 8th grader in Northwestern School District, Lehigh County.

Judge Kin Brock said Billig's champion hog demonstrates the kind of width, depth, and conformation needed to make a winner.

"This hog is super wide-chested and super shapely," Brock said.

The crossbreds swine competed against eight pure breeds in the show.

•Andrew Bankert of York Co., Chester White

Daniel Billig, left, with his grand champion jr. market hog. "This hog is super wide-chested and super shapely," the judge said. With Billig is Sam Hayes, Pa. secretary of agriculture.

•Nicole Diehl of Wayne Co., Duroc

•Luke States of Indiana Co., Hampshire

•Dianna Bond of Lehigh Co., Landrace

•Chris Jeffcoat of Adams Co., Poland China

•Joyce Buck of Philadelphia Co., Spotted

•Loren Hershey of Lancaster Co., Yorkshire.

Judge Brock predicted a bright future for all of the exhibitors, owing to their involvement in 4-H and FFA.

"The question is not whether these kids will go to college, but where," he said.

Two Sweeps In Open Breeding Beef At Farm Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Sunday and Monday's open beef breed competition included a sweep in the Angus ring, with Weaverland Valley Farms taking home grand champion heifer and bull, and a sweep in the Maine-Anjou show, with Walter Cattle Company winning top heifer and bull spots.

Both exhibitors not only topped their breed divisions but also overall, as Weaverland 1418 Commitment 03 took home grand champion Angus bull honors and supreme champion bull placing. A Shorthorn heifer bred by Walter Cattle Company brought home supreme heifer honors.

Limousin, Maine-Anjou Shows

The Limousin and Maine Anjou breeds competed on Sunday.

Edward Nicol, Enon Valley, took home grand champion heifer placing with Nico Kiss This. Nicol also took home the premier exhibitor plaque.

Kristy Dietrich, Hamburg, was reserve champion with KSDL Miss Fireball.

Grand champion Limousin bull honors went to James Robinson, Oley, with JRRC Harvest Olympus 03J.

The champion Angus heifer is owned by Hawthorn Farm and Weaverland Valley Farms, New Holland.

Shorthorn Show

Gene McDonald, Illinois, an Eastern regional field manager for the American Shorthorn Association, judged the Shorthorn show.

His pick for grand champion heifer, WCC Bunny, "excels in so many different traits," he said. The heifer combines an overall muscle pattern, free-moving gait, slope of shoulder and set to her hind leg to pull her to the top of not only the Shorthorn but also to supreme champion placing.

Owner Brooke Keeney, 10, is the daughter of Jim and Annette Keeney, Felton, York County. She has been exhibiting cattle for two years as a member of the York County 4-H Beef Club.

"Bunny" was bred by her grandfather, Donald Walter, who owns approximately 100 head of cattle. Brooke plans to put Bunny out to pasture after the Farm Show, breed her, and get a new heifer to show next year.

Kyle Fleener, Robesonia, had the reserve grand champion heifer and reserve grand champion bull in the Shorthorn show and was named premier exhibitor.

"The breed as a whole has made such tremendous strides and that takes an effort by a lot of people in different areas of expertise," said McDonald.

Katherine Anderson, 11, Midland, and her early spring Shorthorn bull, "Jack Frost," took home grand champion bull honors in the Shorthorn show. Katherine is the daughter of Don and Diane Anderson, owners of a 40-acre farm that hosts 25 purebred registered Shorthorns. "Katie," a 4-H'er, is the fourth generation to farm on the operation. Although she did not exhibit the bull this year, she plans to be in the Farm Show ring next year.

Simmental Show

In the Simmental show, the grand champion heifer title went to Arnold and Linda McClure's junior heifer calf, Tice's Alert Legacy T06L. McClure purchased her at Penn State's spring sale.

McClure, Shirleysburg, owns 500 acres and 150 head of cattle, most of them registered Simmentals. This is his second year exhibiting cattle at the Farm Show.

Haven Woods Farms had the champion Simmental bull, a bred-and-owned Sept. 2000 bull calf. HWF Kadir has been shown all summer and won his division at Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) and the New York State Fair. The farm is owned by Bob and Connie McQuiston, Stoneboro. They have 150 registered Simmental brood cows.

Tim Schaeffer, Myerstown, had the reserve grand champion bull and the reserve grand champion heifer in the Simmental show.

Fred Penick, Hebron, Ohio, judged the Simmental and Hereford shows. Penick also judged the Angus show last at last year's Farm Show. He and his wife farm 1,500 acres and own 500 head of cattle, including 150 registered Angus beef cows.

Angus Show

Weaverland Valley Farms had a banner day during the Angus Show.

The operation, owned by Larry and Barb Weaver, New Holland, took home premier breeder honors and a champion Angus heifer and champion Angus bull sweep.

The bull, Weaverland 1418 Commitment 03, an early senior bull calf, went on to be named supreme bull overall.

The bull pulls together elements that make it a force not only in the show ring but on the farming operation.

"That's what the judging arena is all about — coming up with something that will work for the commercial and cattle breeding man alike," said judge Gillooly.

James Gillooly, Washington, Ind., judged the show. Gillooly operates a seed corn and purebred polled Hereford and purebred Angus operation. He has judged in South Africa, almost every Canadian province, national shows in almost every breed of cattle, and most states in the U.S.

The heifer show, said Gillooly, had "a tremendous amount of quality," with sound heifers to third and fourth placings.

"Structure-wise, you have outstanding females," he said. The champion heifer "is really good proof that you don't have to have them fat enough to destroy their milk production and still win."

The combination of "cleanness of condition and beautiful structure" of Hawthorn Farm and Weaverland Valley Farm's Weaverland HF Sunflower 033 took the heifer to grand champion status.

Bred and residing at Weaverland Valley Farms in New Holland, the heifer was reserve in her division at the Pennsylvania Breeder's Show and won her division at KILE. "She's been in the hunt every time she's been shown," said Barb Weaver of Weaverland Valley Farms.

The heifer, who is bred to calve in February, may appear in show rings in the future as a cow/calf pair.

Jamie Lyn Hower, Bethlehem, and Just Enuff LS3000C Sydney took home reserve champion bull honors in the Angus show.

Approximately 140 head of cattle came through the ring in the Angus show.

Hereford Show

In the Hereford Show, Morgan Firestine and CJF Lily Lady L2 , a junior heifer calf that went onto become junior calf champion, won the grand champion heifer placing.

Firestine pulled double duty during the show, not only exhibiting animals but also handing out ribbons as Pennsylvania's Hereford queen. Firestine and her sister, Margeaux, combined to bring home premier exhibitor and premier breeder plaques for the Firestine family's MAP Farm, Womelsdorf.

Reserve champion heifer honors went to Emilie Miller, Womelsdorf.

CJ Furlong, Mount Joy; Calloway Farm, Seaford, Del.; and Maple Springs Farm, York Springs, are the co-owners of the grand champion Hereford bull, a 2-year-old bull with "a lot of muscle and adequate frame," according to judge Penick.

Furlong, who bred the bull, noted that the bull's mother has had two supreme bulls previously at the Farm Show.

Durham Valley Farm, Mount Joy, took home reserve champion bull placing in the Hereford show.

We've Narrowed Down Your Windrower Choices

In the hay business, you never know where you'll end up – big fields, small fields – even on the road. So, where do you find a self-propelled windrower that covers a lot of ground fast and gets you out of some pretty tight spots?

Look no further than the Hesston Model 8550S windrower. Equipped with the 12-foot disc conditioner header, the 8550S slips past oncoming traffic and negotiates narrow gates and bridges, so you maneuver easily and comfortably from field to field and job to job.

Yet, the 8550S still delivers productivity no other brand of windrower can match.

Thanks to a hefty six-cylinder, turbocharged 165 hp Cummins diesel and the unique Hesston conditioner design, you get high-capacity performance that slices through crops like thick alfalfa and snarled hay at record speeds – up to twice as fast as a sicklebar header.

Find out more about the Model 8550S and the rest of the complete Hesston commercial haying line. Visit your Hesston dealer today.

ALANTA
A member of the LimPoly group of companies. Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- SDSU tested
- Offered to growers for $1 55/per lb in 60 lb bags plus freight
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal and others
- These Alfalfa varieties are proven to compete with the expensive varieties in all conditions and always carry our money back guarantee

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting wonderful alfalfa from South Dakota seed
